

TVA Critics Ask Both Houses to Join in Inquiry

Oppose Suggestion for Investigation by Senate Alone
PLAN GETS SUPPORT

Five Members From Each House Would Make Probe

Washington—(AP)—A group of senate and house critics of TVA joined forces today in demanding a joint congressional investigation instead of one by the senate alone as proposed by several senators.

Senator Bridges (R-N. H.) who, with Senator King (D-Utah), previously had pressed for a senate investigation, announced they had joined with Chairman May (D-Ky.) of the house military affairs committee and Representative Andrews (R-N. Y.), ranking Republican of the house committee, in asking the joint inquiry.

Senator Norris (I-Neb.), who was at first insistent on an investigation by the federal trade commission, failed to gain approval of a senate investigation yesterday.

Majority Leader Barkley (D-Ky.) and Minority Leader McNary (R-Or.) objected to Norris' recusal on the ground the senate and house might be conducting separate investigations at the same time.

Bridges said the joint move today was intended to meet those complaints.

Proposed Inquiry
The new resolution called for an inquiry by five members of the senate, appointed by the vice president, and five members of the house, named by the speaker.

If the new joint request fails in the senate, Bridges said he and King would seek to have the Norris resolution "broadened to include the house members."

Senate discussion of the proposed investigation of the Tennessee Valley authority branched off today into an argument whether Senator Bridges should serve on the inquiry committee.

Senator Norris called on the young New Englander to eliminate himself from consideration. He said Bridges, of the senate's most vociferous critic of the TVA, had shown himself to be prejudiced.

Norris said he himself would not serve, because of his known interest in the welfare of TVA.

Senate Group Tries to Solve Tax Problem

Would Raise Business Confidence but Still Get Necessary Revenue

HARRISON IS HOPEFUL
Public Hearings on Measure are Scheduled to Start Friday

Washington—(AP)—Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.) said today the senate finance committee was determined to bring out a tax bill which will "get the necessary revenue" and at the same time raise business confidence.

As passed by the house, treasury experts have estimated the tax revision bill will fall $22,000,000 short of raising the $5,330,000,000 which the treasury has contended is necessary.

"We want to get the necessary revenue," Harrison said. "That is one of the main features of the tax situation the committee is considering."

After an executive session of the finance committee, Harrison reiterated that his "main goal" for the tax revision bill "is to restore business confidence."

Hearings Open Friday
"The more we can restore confidence," he told reporters, "the more revenue will flow into the treasury."

Harrison said public hearings on the bill would start Friday, with requests from more than 50 witnesses to be heard. Many of these, he asserted, would be asked to make their testimony brief and submit supplemental statements.

Committee members said they were hopeful the tax bill could be sent to the senate floor some time next week.

Members declared sentiment in the committee was overwhelmingly for outright repeal of the undistributed profits tax retained in principle in the house bill.

Asked what could be substituted for the undistributed profits levy if it were eliminated, Harrison mentioned a flat corporation tax. He declined, however, to estimate what flat tax rate might be needed, asserting that he did not want to be committed "to 17 or 18 or 19 per cent."

Phil Warns of Need in State For Economy

Tells Major Departments To Watch Expenditures Closely

SEES LOSS IN REVENUE
Discusses Ways of Avoiding Duplication of Effort

Madison—(AP)—Governor LaFollette has warned officials of major departments to watch expenditures closely in anticipation of reduced state revenues.

"State income goes down when the income of the taxpayer goes down," the governor told the state administrative board yesterday.

"We must therefore plan ahead just as every citizen is required to do by general conditions in the state and the country."

The governor and his advisers discussed numerous ways of eliminating unessential operations and duplication of effort among the departments. The conferees agreed to seek public comment on a proposal to simplify report forms, including income tax, which business firms and individuals are required to fill out.

Thomas F. Davlin, chairman of the highway commission, was named head of a committee of 14 state officials who will coordinate map making and set up a program for wider distribution of maps. The works is now scattered through 13 departments.

Asks Uniform Rules
The governor requested F. X. Ritter, director of purchases, and James B. Borden, budget director, to submit at next Monday's meeting recommendations for uniform rules on state employee traveling expenses.

Heads of major departments were informed they would be expected to report to the administrative conference soon what has been done to revise and simplify laws and what changes they would recommend to the 1939 legislature.

The tax commission reported it has worked out a one-page income tax return to replace the present four page folder for individuals. Discussion disclosed there "probably will be no requirement next year for the signatures of two witnesses on returns."

Two Armed Youths Nabbed at Tavern
Pair Held for Questioning Following Arrest by Kimberly Patrolman

Two young men were apprehended by Patrolman Martin Keyers as they emerged from the Gilbert Gerondale tavern, Kimberly about 2 o'clock this morning. They were being held today by Sheriff John Lappen for questioning.

The men were carrying guns when taken into custody by Keyers and had a car reported stolen at Birmahwood, Sheriff Lappen said. License plates on the car had been issued for another machine, Lappen stated.

Hitler Proclaims Austria in Reich; Flying Homeward

Britain Delays Pledge to Czechoslovakia as She Re-Arms

Austrian Minister Takes Orders From Reich Ambassador

Washington—(AP)—Edgar Prochnik, Austrian minister to the United States, and members of his legation staff were under instructions from Berlin today to place themselves at the disposal of German Ambassador Hans Dieckhoff.

Their activities, the orders said, will be subordinated to those of the German embassy.

Dieckhoff delivered Secretary Hull last night a note setting forth that policy and also formally notifying the state department that Austria had become a part of the German reich.

The assumption here was that the Austrian legation and the Austrian consulates throughout the United States soon will be closed entirely, and that Minister Prochnik will retire.

Informed persons said the United States is prepared to give up its legation quarters in Vienna and to open a consulate in what is now the minister's residence.

There were indications that Britain privately had told Germany she might be compelled to act if Chancellor Hitler sought to bring the German minority in Czechoslovakia into the German nation, as without opposition he absorbed Austria.

Publicly, however, Chamberlain refrained yesterday in his address to the house of commons from any guarantee of aid to Czechoslovakia.

Nevertheless, the British ambassador, Sir Neville Henderson, told Field Marshal Goering in Berlin, diplomatic informant said, that Britain considered "binding" his friendly assurances to Czechoslovakia on Saturday. Goering is acting chancellor in Hitler's absence in Austria.

A similar communication went to Jan Masaryk, the Czech minister in London.

Implied Warning
Thus, it was felt here, Britain had given an implied warning to Germany of a determination to uphold the remaining boundaries of central Europe.

Suspect in Forgery Is Wanted as Deserter

Manitowoc—(AP)—Sheriff Norman Berkedal said yesterday J. Edgar Hoover, F. B. I. head, had informed him that John Cole, held here on a forgery charge, is wanted at San Diego, Calif., as a deserter from the United States Marine corps.

The federal bureau of investigation returned the information to Berkedal after the sheriff had sent Cole's fingerprints to Washington as a matter of routine. Hoover asked that Cole be held until marine authorities communicate with the Manitowoc authorities.

Spanish Government Credits Italians And Germans With Insurgent Advances

Describing the Spanish insurgent march eastward toward the Mediterranean, the government itself told of artillery and motorized columns and bombing planes sweeping through the ancient land that once was part of the Roman empire.

State Department Not Favoring Parsons Bill

Washington—(AP)—Secretary Hull informed the house rivers and harbors committee today, the state department opposed the Parsons (D-Ill.) Great Lakes diversion bill because of possible repercussions in Canada.

"I have no doubt whatever that passage of the bill would cause a very unfavorable reaction in Canada and would lead to strong protests from the Canadian government," he wrote.

4th Degree Manslaughter Sent to Reformatory for

Kenosha—(AP)—Richard Covelli, 23, today was sentenced to one to two years in the state reformatory for fourth degree manslaughter in the automobile death of Alice Hector, 21, last Sept. 26.

A jury had been selected to hear testimony on a first degree manslaughter charge, but when the charge was reduced, Covelli pleaded guilty.

Tribunal Orders Mitten Ouster Suit Dismissed

Supreme Court Finds Hampel Had No Cause For Action

Madison—The state supreme court today dismissed the ouster suit brought against Sheriff Edward J. Mitten of Milwaukee county by Carl R. Hampel, a Socialist, who was a candidate against him on the Progressive ticket in 1936.

In an opinion written by Justice Edward T. Fairchild the court affirmed a ruling by Circuit Judge Charles L. Aarons that Hampel had no cause of action.

Hampel changed in his complaint that Mitten, in an address delivered at West Allis, Oct. 23, 1936, referred to him as a "love pirate" and then read a letter he was alleged to have written to "a married woman" while he was a soldier at Camp Douglas in 1918.

The main ground on which the high court sustained Judge Aarons was that Hampel did not make the contents of the letter a part of the complaint and there was nothing to show whether the letter actually reflected on the character of the plaintiff.

Will of Electorate
Justice Fairchild said that the corrupt practices act, literally construed, requires removal from office for any technical violation, such as the false statement charge preferred by Hampel, but that another section of the statute requires consideration whether the will of the electorate was affected.

"Nothing is more important in a democracy than the accurate recording of the unframed will of the electorate," the opinion said, "Gravest danger to the state is present where this does not find proper expression due to the fact that electors are corrupted or misled."

"It may also be undesirable that the electorate be subject to appeals to emotions, prejudices or bias, but it is very difficult to legislate against such appeals without infringing upon the freedom of speech and discussion."

"Love Pirate" Reference
The decision said that the "love pirate" reference comes within the field of comment rather than statement of fact known to be false and could not be used as grounds to invalidate Mitten's election.

It added that failure to plead the contents of the letter as part of the complaint raised the question whether the letter could not properly have been sent or that the sending of it would be evidence of bad moral character.

"We are not now concerned with the niceties involved in the conduct of a political campaign," Justice Fairchild said. "Undoubtedly men encountering opposition expressed on the stump, from Washington's time to the present, have had occasion to feel grieved over the treatment accorded them."

The opinion concluded with the statement that ouster from office is too severe a penalty to be used as a threat.

Flying Yacht to Carry 120 Across Ocean Is Proposed

Flying Yacht Would Carry Passengers Between New York, London

BY DEVON FRANCIS
Associated Press Aviation Editor
Farmingdale, N. Y.—A proposal to build a 120-passenger flying yacht for service between New York and London was made today to the world's largest trans-oceanic air transport company.

The offer, by the Seversky Aircraft corporation, was in response to an invitation issued by Pan-American Airways last December to eight American aircraft manufacturers to bid on airplanes of at least 100 passenger capacity.

The Seversky craft, would be constructed of stainless steel and contain several dozen staterooms, a dining salon to seat 50 persons, promenades, and a cocktail lounge. It was given a cruising speed of 250 miles an hour at an altitude of 20,000 feet.

$300,000-Pound Weight
It would weigh 300,000 pounds—six times heavier than the flying clippers now in the Pacific service—and have a wingspread of 250 feet.

Major Alexander P. De Seversky, World War flyer and designer of the giant craft, said the machine, equipped with eight engines developing a total of 18,400 horsepower, could be built easily to fly non-stop between the United States and Europe.

The bridge of the ship and its huge twin fuselages would be supercharged to permit flying in the sub-stratosphere.

For the first time in the history of commercial aviation, passengers would be housed in wings, which, at points, would be nine feet thick. The eight powerful engines would be streamlined into the edge of the wing.

The huge craft would float on retractable pontoons, which in flight would be drawn up beside the fuselages, on landing and takeoffs the pontoons would hold the ship's wing 22 feet above water.

State Shows Interest in Y Volleyball Tourney
More than 40 replies evincing interest in the state open volleyball tournament which will be held here Saturday, April 2, have been received. Ray Risch, physical education director at the Y. M. C. A., said today.

The tournament will be conducted with the sanction of the United States Volleyball association. The class A winner will be eligible to play in the national championship at Detroit later in April.

tremendous defenses, which eventually might even include compulsory military service for all capable of fighting.

Britain's present five-year defense program, in its second year, is to cost $7,500,000,000 but the figure may be raised to $10,000,000,000.

Home Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare, appealed last night for a million volunteer workers to aid England's air raid precaution program, asserting that "the more disturbed is continental Europe, the more urgent it is for us to make every possible preparation."

Exactly what form of action Britain would undertake in the event of a German push into Czechoslovakia was not apparent today.

The French government has asked for a definite promise of British armed support, and France herself has renewed pledges to fight for Czechoslovakia.

German Position
Since Germany held that the union of all Germans under Hitler was not completed with annexation of Austria, the Nazi nation apparently was convinced the 3,500,000 Germans in Czechoslovakia easily could be nazified.

There were reports Herr Goering was attempting to make a deal with the Czech government whereby Germany peacefully would become protector of the Czech Germans, and guard all Czechoslovakia from "bolchevism."

The attitude of Italy also might be considered a setback to British hopes of a strong front against Germany.

"From the Italian government," Chamberlain told commons, "we have received no full exposition of their views."

Premier Mussolini, with whom Chamberlain sought to make a friendship agreement at the cost of his foreign secretary, Anthony Eden, gave Hitler his assurances in a telegram to Vienna.

"My attitude is determined by the friendship between our two countries consecrated in the (Rome-Berlin) axis."

Official Italy, formerly an avowed protector of Austrian independence, saw in the Austrian annexation a natural evolution.

Paris—The franc slid further downward in early bank trading today while the new people's front government tried to accelerate French re-armament to back up a stiffening diplomatic stand against Germany.

The franc fell to 35.55 to the dollar—6 centimes below yesterday's bank closing and 105 centimes below the bourse closing.

It was reported in chamber of deputies corridors that parties of the right, which are not participating in the new government of Premier Leon Blum, were being sounded out again on the initiative of President Albert Lebrun as to the formation of a national union government if Blum's regime is short-lived.

Blum was trying for support of all parties, but political sources thought there was little likelihood of success. Deputies were of the opinion that Blum would win a majority in his first appearance in the chamber but run into serious trouble thereafter.

Pleds For Harmony
The premier was urging labor and capital in war industries to abandon their rivalries to speed up arms production to meet the threat of expanded pan-Germanism in central Europe.

In a grave council with officers of the general confederation of labor last night, Blum told the leaders of 5,000,000 workers that Germany's fusion with Austria made acceleration of the French armament program imperative. He asked their cooperation.

A second labor conference was called for today, and leading industrialists were invited for a meeting immediately afterward to study "practical measures" to increase supplies of armaments and war materials.

Prepared to Act
These steps were on the heels of assurances given by Blum and his foreign minister, Joseph Paul-Boncour, to Czechoslovakian Minister Stefan Osusky, that France stood ready to make good on her promise of military action should Nazis at-

Foreign Reporters Have Tough Time Getting to Hitler

Vienna—About 35 members of the foreign newspaper corps almost missed Chancellor Hitler's speech in Heroes' square today when they unexpectedly found themselves "prisoners" in the chancellery.

They went to the press section of the foreign office to obtain permits to witness the demonstration. When they attempted to leave they found the way blocked by a black uniformed S.S. trooper who shouted: "Get back. I have orders to shoot if the stars are not cleared."

Although the "world press," which Hitler often has attacked, enlisted the aid of the press section and even made representations to the American legation, it was many minutes and Hitler's address was well under way before they obtained their release.

Latest Building Materials to be Feature of Show

Knights of Pythian Will Sponsor Displays at Armory Next Week

Handsome building material, roofing, plumbing and heating equipment, paints, wall coverings and other products essential to building and remodeling will be attractively displayed at the fourth annual Better Housing and Home Show which will be sponsored by the Knights of Pythias lodge March 24, 25, 26, and 27 at Armory G.

H. F. Heckert and R. O. Schmidt are co-chairmen for the 4-day event, designed to encourage the building of new homes and remodeling of those standing. The show will give people of Appleton and vicinity their first look at new 1938 building materials.

All booths have been reserved at the armory. More than 50 displays will be shown. This year's show is being held a week later than usual because several exhibitors who will appear at a similar event in Milwaukee wish to display their material and equipment here. Because Castle hall is in a state of reconstruction, the show had to be shifted to the armory this year.

Earl D. Miller has been named chairman of the ticket sale for the show which will be open to the public Thursday, Friday, and Saturday afternoons and evenings and Sunday afternoon.

The decorations committee is aiming to turn the armory into a most attractive setting for the Better Housing and Home Show. Music and other entertainment and gas and electric displays will be features.

tempt to include the Czech democracy in a "greater Germany."

Blum withheld details of the arms program, but the independent national defense fund already was expected to borrow 3,200,000,000 francs ($56,000,000) for 1938 in addition to ordinary and extraordinary defense budget provisions of 22,000,000,000 francs ($660,000,000).

Object of the labor-capital conference was understood to be a workers' agreement to drop the 40-hour week in factories working for national defense in exchange for an employers' promise to grant overtime pay.

'Gypsy Luck' Among New Books at Public Library

Among new books for children placed on the shelves at the Appleton Public Library this week is "Gypsy Luck" by Chesley Kahmann, according to Miss Dorothy Kotlosky, children's librarian.

The book is the story of Linji, a Gypsy girl, who loved horses and because of a horse owned by Bob Baxter, came closer to the non-Gypsy world than she had intended. How she came to ride the horse and get her picture on the front pages of all the newspapers is part of the exciting adventure story.

Other books placed on the shelves this week are "U-Haul America Singing" by Barnes; "Sue Barton, Senior Nurse," by Boylston; "The Pig With a Front Porch" by Brock; "This is Petra" by Duncan; "The Little Girl Who Waved" by Ford; "Antarctic Ice Breakers" by Fox; "The House With the Echo" by Govan.

"Pigtails" by Hekking; "Billey Bob and the Big Brown Bear" by Howard; "Nicomachus and Petunia" by Hogen; "A Hat For Harriet" by Hutchison; "Sean and Sheila" by Kling; "Down the Ohio With Clark" by Lindsay; "The White Stag" by Seredy; "The Loving Heart" by Singmaster; and "Humpty, Son of the Sands" by Williamson.

Tree Damage Hit By Fogelson in Talk Before Club

Improper Pruning Is Termed 'Butchery' by Landscape Engineer

Improper pruning and unnecessary destruction of trees by both public and private agencies, practices which detract from the beauty of a city and nullify years of careful work, were analyzed and criticized by L. Earl Fogelson, Green Bay landscape engineer, at a meeting of the Appleton Lions' club yesterday noon at the Conway hotel. Members of the park board were present.

Fogelson is former superintendent of parks at Green Bay and the originator of the tree planning program which has been eminently successful in that city. He illustrated yesterday's talk with slides, some of them showing streets in Appleton where valuable trees have been killed permanently injured, and defaced.

Termining such practices "criminal negligence" and "butchery," Fogelson said: "We put a stop to it at Green Bay, but there is nothing that can be done unless you have an ordinance covering it. We now make it necessary for persons to have permits before they may do any pruning or cutting of trees in the city."

Not only has Green Bay's tree planning program saved many trees now standing but has heightened interest in the planting of others, he said. Last year there were 1,078 trees planted in that city. Permits for pruning were issued first in 1932 and 69 were made out that year in Green Bay. Last year more than 1,700 were issued.

The Green Bay landscape engineer has been hired by the Appleton park board as a consultant on park planning for this city.

Fogelson declared yesterday that cities "are judged by tourists driving through and by visitors on their appearance and trees are as important a part of community appearance as anything else."

Only one kind of tree should be planted on a street, the landscape engineer said. The trees should be planted in straight rows, equal distances apart, and should be of the same size.

Careless pruning of trees threatens their longevity as much as careless pruning of a diseased tree, Fogelson said. Once a cut is made in a tree, the owner should be careful to waterproof and weatherproof the open section to keep out parasites.

Hundreds Pay Tribute To Clarence Darrow
Chicago—Friends and admirers of Clarence Darrow gathered at Bond chapel on the University of Chicago campus today to pay final respects to the eminent criminal lawyer.

Hundreds of persons filed past the bier of the 80-year-old agnostic who died of heart disease Sunday. Funeral services included a brief, non-religious eulogy by Federal Judge William H. Holt, close friend of the famous advocate.

Judge Holt and Darrow had agreed that one should speak at the other's funeral.

Three years ago Darrow declared he had taken him 50 years to be convinced there was "nothing after death."

His body will be cremated, at his request.

Driver in Fatal Accident Faces Manslaughter Trial
Neillsville, Wis.—A coroner's jury returned a verdict late yesterday that Mrs. Earl Rose, 34, died Sunday of injuries suffered as a result of being struck by an automobile driven by Robert P. Chadwick of Greenwood, who was under alcoholic influences.

Mrs. Rose, the mother of five children, was killed and her husband seriously injured as they walked toward their parked car near an intersection.

Chadwick, charged with first degree manslaughter, was held under $1,000 bond pending hearing March 23.

Woman Charges Cruel Treatment in Divorce
Gertrude Schreiner, 43, 734 W. Lorain street, was granted a divorce by Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon from Robert P. Schreiner, Appleton. She charged cruelty and inhuman treatment, and was awarded alimony of $20 a month. The couple married at St. John Sept. 19, 1912, and separated Feb. 12, 1938.

Truck, Auto Damaged In Traffic Collision
A truck driven by Henry Stage, 23, Elkhardt Lake, and an automobile driven by C. C. Meyers, 38, New London, were damaged in a collision about 2:45 this morning. Stage was going south on Badger avenue and Meyers west on College avenue when the crash occurred. No one was injured, according to a police report.

Sauthoff Favors Popular Vote on U.S. Navy Program

Charges Present Proposals Are 'Munition-Maker's Dream'

Washington—A tensely silent house heard a warning today that the United States must prepare to defend the entire western hemisphere because "dictatorships are on the march."

Representative Wadsworth (R-N.Y.), in one of his rare floor speeches, endorsed the Roosevelt administration's billion dollar naval expansion program as a realization of the "grim, grim fact" that "force today is ruling the world."

Tracing the recent turbulent developments in Europe to the pressure of populations seeking an outlet, Wadsworth said that with central Europe under one government "we shall see another example of what is going on in China, but on a much larger scale."

Later, he said, the rich areas of South America would constitute the "greatest temptation" to "those who believe in the use of force." Before the New Yorker took the floor, Representative Luckey (D-Neb.) opposed the naval bill. He contended that if passed, it would mark a deliberate step toward war.

Washington—A proposal that the people vote on the administration's billion dollar naval expansion program at the November election came today from Representative Sauthoff (P-Wis.).

Asserting the construction program could not be started for two years, Sauthoff said nothing would be lost if the voters decided in its favor.

There was little immediate reaction to his unprecedented suggestion, but Representative Brewster (R-Maine), a leading critic of the building program, called it "interesting."

Constantly reminded of the shifting European panorama, the house continued its discussion of foreign policy implications in the bill to enlarge the navy.

Opponents of the legislation said Adolf Hitler's Austrian coup emphasized the wisdom of a "stay at home" policy for the United States. They contended the existing national defense was adequate for that purpose.

New War Expected
Proponents argued that the "inevitability" of another European war made it imperative for this country to strengthen her naval forces.

Representative Tinkham (R-Mass.), only member of the house with a full beard, declared in yesterday's debate that President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull have been "not only friendly but in alliance with England and England's policies."

He quoted Winston Churchill, British statesman, as saying Great Britain had "excellent agreements" with the United States which meant, in effect, pooling the navies of both nations.

"I say," continued Tinkham, "that anyone who has made that arrangement, whether he be president of the United States or secretary of state, is disloyal to the United States and is traitorous."

Tinkham's charge brought an angry denial from Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the house naval committee, who asserted there was "not a scintilla of evidence" to back up the assertion.

"To the contrary, he (Tinkham) has a positive declaration from public officials denying any such statement," Vinson said.

Sauthoff denounced the naval expansion program as "a munition-maker's dream" that would line pockets of the "shipbuilding trust with a gift of between $64,000,000 and $74,000,000."

"That is what this rush for a super-navy boils down to," Sauthoff warned.

He predicted the next world war was in the making but that the United States could and should avoid it by shunning entangling alliances. He belittled prospects of war on the Atlantic and declared Japan did not want to fight us in the Pacific.

"What then is the meaning of this? This bill is a munition-maker's dream. It is a gift of millions to the shipbuilding trust."

Sauthoff voiced a "conviction our democratic institutions would not survive the strain of another world war."

Cities Draw Battle Lines To Renew Home Rule Fight With State Legislators

BY JOHN W. WYNGAARD
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau
Madison—Back in 1924, on the theory that local municipal electors are capable of deciding what they want in their local government and that they have a right to handle their local problems in their own way, the people of Wisconsin adopted the home rule amendment to the state constitution.

Thus, it was believed, was ended a historic wrangle between municipalities and the state legislature on the source of responsibility for local affairs. Thenceforth municipalities were to conduct their own business and control their own affairs, except in those matters which had a state-wide concern.

Today, however, almost 14 years later, municipal leaders in the state are dissatisfied. The home rule principle is not working out, they say. The capitol, despite constitutional amendments and home rule pronouncements, continues to control municipal affairs to a large extent. Legislators are still meddling in the local affairs of Appleton, Green Bay, Oshkosh, Manitowish and other cities. And they don't like it. So little do they like it that they are now preparing to renew the home rule fight.

Seek Redefinition
Under the leadership of the Wisconsin League of Municipalities, state municipal leaders are drawing up a program to redefine municipal home rule powers under the state laws and the 14 year old amendment to the state constitution. It hopes thus to "salvage some powers for municipalities."

Principal grievance of state municipalities (there are in Wisconsin 145 cities and 360 incorporated villages) is the steady increase in state legislation which imposes duties on city governments, and adds a financial burden in carrying them out.

Added to this dissatisfaction is the fact that the state supreme court in recent years has interpreted the home rule amendment rather narrowly, so that today municipalities are not enjoying the freedom from state restrictions which they imagined they would when they wrote the amendment in 1920 and succeeded in pushing it over the formidable hurdles which face constitutional changes.

Under the present law and judicial interpretation, according to municipal leaders, home rule is becoming less and less a practical possibility. While many of the evils of legislative meddling which plagued local officials before 1924 are no longer present, municipalities feel that they still do not have the measure of autonomy to which they are entitled.

2-Way Program
League action in the problem will probably take two directions. One will be a series of test cases before the state supreme court which will seek further determination of the status of municipal powers. The second will probably be a legislative program to be presented to the next legislature in January.

While the issue is rather academic, Frederick N. MacMillin, secretary of the League of Municipalities, explains it this way: according to MacMillin, the citizens of Appleton are better qualified to manage their municipal government, where occur the majority of the relationships between government and the individual, and where officialdom is under constant scrutiny, than the state capital officials, who are farther removed from the people who are concerned with far more problems of greater complexity.

"State administrations are still largely partisan, while non-partisanship in municipal affairs is increasing. Professionalization has made greater progress in municipal government than in state service. Advances in budgetary procedure, purchasing methods, accounting practice, financial reporting, structural organization and business-like efficiency have originated in city halls rather than at state capitals. Instances of state compulsion have brought actual set-backs," MacMillin declares.

"The worst result of state supervision of municipalities might be a falling off in the interest taken in city government, a deterioration in the calibre of those elected to municipal councils, and a reluctance of qualified administrators to seek municipal positions." Such is the attitude of the official organization of Wisconsin cities and villages on a problem which the next legislature will hear much about.

public officials denying any such statement," Vinson said.

Sauthoff denounced the naval expansion program as "a munition-maker's dream" that would line pockets of the "shipbuilding trust with a gift of between $64,000,000 and $74,000,000."

"That is what this rush for a super-navy boils down to," Sauthoff warned.

12 Appleton High Graduates Get Top Grades at College

Of 128 graduates of Appleton High school enrolled at Lawrence college, 12 were rated in the upper 10 per cent of their classes during the first semester, according to a letter from Dean John S. Mills sent to H. H. Heible, high school principal.

Carlyle Rennert, 1813 N. Oneida street and Janet Riesberry, 705 N. Union street, received perfect grades for the first semester and are rated at the top of the senior class. Leading the sophomore class with perfect grades is Mary White, 411 E. Washington street.

Others who placed near the top in their classes are: senior, Anna Belle Wolf, 528 N. Meade street; junior, Kenneth Sager, 121 E. Atlantic street; sophomores, Betty White, 411 E. Washington street; Audrey Galpin, 1203 N. Superior street; Henry Johnson, 827 E. College avenue; Ellen Driscoll, 411 W. Sixth street; Kith Downey, 1616 N. Morrison street; Thomas Gochmayer, 802 E. College avenue; Dennis Wilch, 1129 E. Nawada street.

Relief Costs to City Amounted to $6,782 in Month

Total Is $1,154 Less Than For February 1937, Report Shows

City relief costs during February were $6,782.79, an increase of $421.02 over January but a decrease of $1,154.34 from February 1937, a report compiled by the relief accounting department for F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director, reveals. The January cost of relief was $6,361.77 and the February 1937 cost, $7,937.03.

A total of 228 cases was cared for during February as compared to 215 in January and 274 in February 1937. Payments to other counties for city charges not residing in Appleton amounted to $148.53, a decrease of $8.86 from February of last year.

Other costs for the month included $955.39 for administration, $2,830.54 for provisions, $980.78 shelter allowance, $184.15 for clothing, $1,151.07 for fuel, $157.75 for public utilities, $138.47 for drugs and equipment, $550.50 for physician care, $73 for dental care, $172.25 for hospitalization, burials $25, other direct relief $12.86 and direct relief paid in cash $97.50.

The city spent $2,270.89 for county charges and the city is reimbursed for the amount.

While the issue is rather academic, Frederick N. MacMillin, secretary of the League of Municipalities, explains it this way: according to MacMillin, the citizens of Appleton are better qualified to manage their municipal government, where occur the majority of the relationships between government and the individual, and where officialdom is under constant scrutiny, than the state capital officials, who are farther removed from the people who are concerned with far more problems of greater complexity.

"State administrations are still largely partisan, while non-partisanship in municipal affairs is increasing. Professionalization has made greater progress in municipal government than in state service. Advances in budgetary procedure, purchasing methods, accounting practice, financial reporting, structural organization and business-like efficiency have originated in city halls rather than at state capitals. Instances of state compulsion have brought actual set-backs," MacMillin declares.

"The worst result of state supervision of municipalities might be a falling off in the interest taken in city government, a deterioration in the calibre of those elected to municipal councils, and a reluctance of qualified administrators to seek municipal positions." Such is the attitude of the official organization of Wisconsin cities and villages on a problem which the next legislature will hear much about.

public officials denying any such statement," Vinson said.

Sauthoff denounced the naval expansion program as "a munition-maker's dream" that would line pockets of the "shipbuilding trust with a gift of between $64,000,000 and $74,000,000."

"That is what this rush for a super-navy boils down to," Sauthoff warned.

He predicted the next world war was in the making but that the United States could and should avoid it by shunning entangling alliances. He belittled prospects of war on the Atlantic and declared Japan did not want to fight us in the Pacific.

"What then is the meaning of this? This bill is a munition-maker's dream. It is a gift of millions to the shipbuilding trust."

Sauthoff voiced a "conviction our democratic institutions would not survive the strain of another world war."

St. Patrick's Day Play to be Staged At Columbia Hall

St. Mary Cast Will Present
"Luck of the Irish,"
Wednesday, Thursday

An Irish play, "The Luck of the Irish," which will be presented at 8:15 Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Columbia hall, will be the official observance of St. Patrick's day by St. Mary congregation this year. The play, a comedy-drama in three acts, is being directed by the Rev. Lambert Scanlan, assistant pastor, and a cast of characters composed of members of the parish will participate. Between acts the St. Patrick's Singers will give vocal selections and some of the school children will appear in dance numbers and musical offerings.

St. Mary Study club has postponed its meeting from Wednesday to March 23 because of the play. Lenten devotions will be held Wednesday and Friday nights, with stations of the cross for children at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon.

The Rev. William J. Scherer, rector of All Saints Episcopal church, will be guest preacher at the mid-week lenten service Tuesday evening at the Episcopal church in Big Suamico. Lenten services at the local church consist of communion at 10 o'clock Tuesday mornings and 7 o'clock Thursday mornings, and a service at 7:30 Friday nights. The sermon topic for this Friday night is, "Present Movements Toward Church Unity."

New Members Received

Three new members were admitted into St. Matthew Lutheran church at the monthly meeting of the congregation last night. For lenten services Wednesday and Thursday of this week the Rev. Edmund Reim, Neenah, will preach on "Annas and Nicodemus." Last Sunday morning the Rev. Philipp Froehke, pastor, preached on "Discipleship." At St. Paul Lutheran church the Rev. William Wichmann, Kimberly, will preach the lenten sermons Wednesday and Thursday evenings, his subject to be "Two Fallen Disciples." The Rev. F. M. Brandt, pastor, spoke last Sunday morning on "With Determination to Jerusalem."

Sunday school teachers and officers of Trinity English Lutheran church will meet this evening at the church, and the church council met last night. The Rev. D. E. Boserman, pastor, will speak at the lenten service at 7:30 Wednesday night on "The Cross, a Lesson in Love."

"The Book of Genesis" is the topic which Dr. Harry C. Culver, pastor of First Methodist Episcopal church, will discuss at the lenten service Thursday night at his church following a friendship supper. Last Sunday he spoke on "Jesus' Good News." At First Congregational church the Rev. John B. Hanna, pastor, will preach Thursday night on "The Holy Ghost," following a pot-luck supper for which Mrs. Harry Leith will be chairman. Mr. Hanna spoke last Sunday on "Spiritual Blindness."

Plover Conference.
The Rev. I. E. Schlagenhauf, district superintendent for Appleton district of the Methodist Episcopal church, was at Plover Monday night for a quarterly conference and is at Waupaca today. The Rev. John W. Wilson, pastor-at-large for the Congregational church in Wisconsin, preached Sunday morning at Sheboygan.

"The Spirit of Lent" is the topic to be discussed by the Rev. A. Guenther at lenten services Wednesday night at St. John Evangelical and Reformed church. Sunday morning the pastor preached on "The Spirit of Self Denial." Lenten services at Emmanuel Evangelical church will be held Thursday night with the Rev. G. H. Blum, pastor, preaching. He spoke Sunday on "The Self-Sacrificing Christ."

Mrs. J. S. Lincoln, evangelist from Des Moines, Iowa, will continue her preaching mission at The Gospel temple this week, conducting services at 7:30 each night except Saturday. She spoke at both morning and evening services at the temple Sunday.

Supper Meeting.
A parent-teacher's supper meeting will be held from 6 to 8:30 Friday night at First Baptist church. Last Sunday the Rev. R. H. Spangler, pastor, preached on "If You Were God?" At First English Lutheran church the Rev. F. C. Reuter, pastor, spoke on "Keeping Ourselves in the Power of God."

"Substance" was the subject of the lesson-sermon for Sunday at First Church of Christ, Scientist. The following is a passage from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "If matter, so-called, is substance, then spirit, matter's unlikeliness, must be shadow, and shadow cannot produce substance. The admission that there can be material substance requires another admission,—namely that spirit is not infinite and that matter is self-creative, self-existent, and eternal. From this it would follow that there are two eternal causes, warring forever with each other; and yet we say that spirit is supreme and all-presence. The universe reflects and expresses the divine substance or mind; therefore God is seen only in the spiritual universe and spiritual man, as the sun is seen in the ray of light which goes out from it."

Foe of Union Labor Is Leader in Los Angeles

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

Los Angeles—Unlike most other American cities, Los Angeles is politically shapeless and as insubstantial as a cloud and has no head man. Affairs, like the notoriously wild and dangerous motor traffic, are conducted by the rule of every man for himself, and the chief of police took it upon himself, without any legal authority, to turn back about 50,000 penniless refugees from the so-called dust bowl and got away with it on the ground that this mass immigration of hungry people was a menace to the peace and prosperity of the community. They were described as a cloud of locusts threatening to eat Los Angeles out of house and home, and the fact that they were Americans and subject to no legal immigration restriction was deemed to be unimportant in the emergency.

Although the city has no boss comparable to Tom Pendergast in Kansas City nor any government head comparable to La Guardia in New York, there is a sort of great spirit in the person of Harry Chandler, the president of the Los Angeles Times. Mr. Chandler is 73 years old and is the heir to the heir to the authority and traditions of the late General Harrison Gray Otis, who fought union labor to his dying day and made Los Angeles a non-union town. Mr. Chandler married the daughter of General Otis, and he has been faithful to his late father-in-law's principles.

His own devotion to the old general's cause was strengthened by personal experience in the dynamiting of the Times plant in the fall of 1910. The charge which blew up the building, killing twenty-one men, was placed beneath his own office in the hope that it would get him, but he had gone home when it went off. Another bomb, placed in the general's home, failed to explode, and the two men who were the personal objects of the plot lived to see the assassins in prison and to exploit the disaster to the detriment of labor organization long after the public had forgotten the explosion. Grew rapidly with Non-Union Reputation

Los Angeles became the refuge of manufacturers and other industrialists who did not want to be bothered by union troubles and grew vastly by contrast with and largely at the expense of San Francisco, where the unions were strong. Mr. Chandler insists that the non-union shop also appealed to a good grade of workmen who had run foul of union rules, discipline, exactions and rackets in other places and had been harassed or blacklisted and barred from employment. He now interprets the dynamiting as a blessing in disguise and regards the 21 dead as martyrs to the freedom and the development of the city.

Los Angeles doubled her population in the decade between 1920 and 1930 and now has about 1,500,000 people in a city which sprawls over vast areas of thinly populated land and includes a great seaport and naval base and farms, oil fields, slum and the Hollywood colony, where the proletariat sit by their swimming pools, sipping drinks and brooding over their thrifdom. Mr. Chandler participated in the plotting of Hollywood as a subdivision in 1903 and recalls that the place was so called by sheer inspiration when he and some others who were arguing over a name saw a boy leading a burro laden with holly, which grew profusely on the land. As a boy of 16 he had come out from New Hampshire for his health and earned a living peddling fruit at first and later delivering newspapers.

Remains to be Seen Whether Tradition Will Last
It is hard to interpret his attitude toward labor organization. The merchants and other business men are organized against labor organizations, but he says he thinks it would be a calamity if the unions were to be destroyed. Yet he refuses to deal with unions and fights

Eight Wisconsin CCC Camps to be Closed by June 30

Total of 291 Units Will be Suspended in United States

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington — Despite Senator F. Ryan Duffy's vigorous protest, eight of Wisconsin's CCC camps will be closed some time between now and the end of the fiscal year, June 30. They are at Phelps, Grandview, Laona, Hayward, Boulder Junction, Tomahawk, Independence, and Mt. Horeb, according to an announcement from the office of the civilian conservation corps director.

Wisconsin will still retain 35 camps in various sections of the state, the director of emergency conservation work told Senator Duffy, but because of a cut in the funds available camps are being closed in all states where the C.C.C. program operates.

Through the country a total of 291 camps will be closed, and it was pointed out that in proportion Wisconsin could not justly complain over the loss of eight camps. From 1,501 CCC camps the country over, the number will be reduced to 1,210 camps before the end of the current fiscal year, according to an announcement from the office of the civilian conservation corps.

"In view of my protest, the eight camps to be closed in Wisconsin will be continued in operation as long as possible," Senator Duffy states, "and very likely will continue until some time after June 1. There is even a possibility of their operation being continued to June 30, which will be the end of the present fiscal year."

The decision as to which camps are to be retained and which are to be discontinued is entirely up to the particular service under which any camp is operated — such services being forest service, national park service, and the soil conservation service, as well as the state conservation commission at Madison, Senator Duffy explained. Works periods under the CCC operating program are for six months, being divided April 1 to October 1.

them constantly. He pays good wages and gives bonuses and claims to believe that the other employers are high-minded, conscientious men who are better judges of right and more reliable guardians of the workmen's interest than union leaders. There he takes his stand. The great spirit of Los Angeles, at the age of 73, is a very rich man and is preparing his son Norman, 39 years old, for the succession. He took over from his father-in-law and carried on in a manner to gratify the soul of the departed leader, but union people cherish a hope that Edsel Ford, when he takes the throne, will modify the old man's policies, and it remains to be seen whether Norman Chandler, in the role of great spirit, will maintain the tradition of super-government from a publishers' office.

Supervisors Hear Request for Flood Control Measures

State Funds for Project on Embarras River Available, Petition States

A petition asking for flood control measures along the Embarras river, a resolution proposing an advance to the state highway department of $35,000 from the county's 1938 allotment for improvement of Superhighway 41 and a recommendation that action on a southern connection link between the city and the superhighway be deferred until the May session were heard by the county board at its opening spring session this morning at the courthouse.

The petition, brought in by Supervisors Curt E. Rogers, town of Liberty, and Leo Black, Maple Creek, stated that funds for flood control now are obtainable from the state and that the project could be carried out without cost to the county.

Flood conditions were created through the building of Highway 54, the petition said. A hearing on the matter with the state highway department was held and a department promised aid if a deal could be found, the petition read, and this is now possible. The petition was referred to the highway committee and district attorney.

State Asks Advance

The superhighway 41 beltline will be completed this year in the county if the county advances $35,000 of its 1938 allotment. Advance of the money is asked by the state highway department and approved by the county highway committee. The resolution will be acted upon by the board Wednesday.

Special Committee Named

The November session of the board to study the best possible route for a southern connection link between Appleton and Superhighway 41 asked that action on the problem be delayed until the May session. The report was accepted.

Appointment of a Special Committee

To establish a county home was recommended by the committee composed of the pension and poor committees named last fall to investigate the matter. Data now is being secured to ascertain the number of county charges eligible for the county home. A full report could be made by a special committee, appointed by the board, at the May session, the recommendation stated.

Proposed by Steinhauser

Establishment of a county home was suggested to the county board at its last meeting by Alderman Mike Steinhauser, Appleton, who said the county could care for the city charges with other county charges at less cost than the city now pays for keeping the city home.

Approval of the park board's appointment of Milford Steffen, Hortonville, to the board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Joseph Doerflinger, Kimberly, was given.

Improvement of Meade street from Wisconsin avenue north to the superhighway asked in a resolution of the street and bridge committee of the Appleton council was read and referred to the highway committee and district attorney. A resolution of the city council accepting $25,000 from the county for paving S. River and Fremont street in the Fourth ward also was read and referred to the highway committee.

Add to Trunk System

Communications from the state highway department stating that approval has been given for addition of 12 miles of road in the town of Greenville and 24 miles of road in the town of Buchanan to the county trunk system were read and referred to the highway committee. A resolution passed by the Ashland county board regarding allotments of state emergency funds for 27 counties was read and placed on file. A report of the secretary of the Wisconsin County Boards association on state relief expenditures was read and referred to the executive committee and district attorney. A resolution passed by the Wood county board asking increased state aid for road maintenance for counties also was read and referred to the highway committee. The remainder of the morning session was devoted to the highway committee.

Senior Class Play Is Postponed to April 7

Because of conflicting activities at Lawrence college, the Appleton High school senior class play, "Spring Dance," will be presented April 7 instead of April 4 at Lawrence Memorial chapel, school authorities announced today.

Ellen Marty and James VanRyzin have been selected to play the leading roles in the play and rehearsals are being conducted at the high school under the direction of Miss Ruth McKennan, dramatics coach.

Colder Tomorrow, Weatherman Says

Thermometer Registers 35 At Noon Today; Hint Of Rain In Sky

The sun kept in hiding most of today, but temperatures were warm enough in Appleton and vicinity to assure residents that winter is on the way out. At noon today the thermometer atop the Post-Crescent building registered 35 degrees.

Mild weather tonight and colder temperatures tomorrow are forecast today by the Milwaukee bureau. Snow is predicted for the north portion of Wisconsin tonight and tomorrow and snow or rain in the south.

For the 24-hour period ending at 9 o'clock this morning, the highest mark in the city was 36 and the lowest 28, according to charts at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company. A gloomy sky and fresh east wind this afternoon indicated that rain might fall in this sector.

Waupaca Woman Wins Suit to Collect Note

Madison—The supreme court affirmed today a judgment in favor of Ethel M. Schneider of Waupaca on a promissory note.

Miss Schneider was granted a judgment of $1,331.75 on Feb. 19, 1937, by Circuit Judge E. V. Werner against Mrs. Guy Anderson, also of Waupaca, in connection with payments on a promissory note dated Dec. 26, 1923.

Mrs. Anderson appealed, her attorneys declaring the note should be outlawed under the statute of limitations.

Mrs. Anderson's husband died Jan. 25, 1931. She said her husband's estate was insolvent and that Miss Schneider was paid a percentage share of the estate, amounting to $12,717, on July 17, 1935.

Counsel for Miss Schneider said the note signed by Mrs. Anderson was a valid obligation.

Wins $200 Award for Damages to Automobile

Madison—The supreme court held today that Walter Bunn, of Mountain, is entitled to $200 for damages to his automobile in an accident.

Bunn filed suit against L. E. Bucknam, a farmer in the town of Waubesa, La Crosse county, asking $199 for damages to his automobile in an accident Dec. 11, 1935. The accident occurred on State Highway 64 near Elton. Bunn appealed from a ruling by Judge E. V. Werner dismissing his complaint.

Two Motorists Plead Guilty of Speeding

Luther Meyer, 20, Neenah, pleaded guilty of speeding and of failing to stop at an arterial when he appeared before Judge Thomas H. Ryan in municipal court yesterday afternoon. Warm Weather Expected to Bring Large Increase in Seasonal Work

All able-bodied men now receiving help from the relief department are expected to take any jobs offered and to keep in close contact with the Wisconsin State Employment Service bureau, F. A. W. Hammond, city relief director said today.

Warm weather is approaching and a large increase in seasonal employment, such as construction and road work, may be expected, he said.

"WPA has stepped into the gap in employment, offering temporary jobs to many men unexpectedly thrown out of work," Hammond stated. "It is hoped that many of these workers will find steady employment in private industry within the next few months. Most of these workers keep their applications active at the employment office and many have been placed in good jobs through the service."

"New regulations received by the county public welfare department, the certifying agency for the county, state that all certified workers must renew their applications for work at the employment office every 30 days, otherwise their certifications will be cancelled. Full information regarding the procedure will be given in April when workers renew their applications for work at the employment office at 123 S. Appleton street."

"Plans are underway whereby all certified workers throughout the county will be notified regarding the dates their renewals of their applications must be made at the employment office. Failure to heed and follow the instructions will mean cancellation of certification and their work on WPA terminated."

"It is hoped that through the employment service, which makes a careful analysis of the worker's experience and ability, many men and women will be placed permanently in private industry and many more industries offering seasonal employment."

Three Machines Damaged In Crash on Highway 41

Two automobiles and a tractor with a semi-trailer were damaged in a traffic accident about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon on Superhighway 41 two miles northeast of Appleton. Cars driven by Herman Schuman, route 3, Appleton, and J. J. Gagner, 223 E. Adams street, Green Bay, collided and the Gagner machine then went out of control and was involved in a collision with the tractor driven by Sylvester Peerenboom, Oshkosh. Schuman drove onto Highway 41 from County Trunk E and Gagner was going east on the highway when their machines collided. Peerenboom was going west on the highway, according to Charles Steidl, captain of the county traffic squad, who investigated.

AAA Payments to Farmers are Near Year's Peak Level

Approximately $72,000,000 of 1938 Amount Already Paid

Payments in connection with the 1937 agricultural conservation program and other 1937 and current AAA programs are now underway and are expected to be at peak levels during the current month, according to word received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent, from the United States Department of Agriculture. The payments during the period ending July 1 will exceed the payments of the last seven months by about $300,000,000.

Payments already made in 1938 amount to approximately $72,000,000. Payments between March 1 and June 30, are expected to amount to approximately $335,000,000. Of this amount, approximately $110,000,000 will be paid in March, $100,000,000 in April, $80,000,000 in May, and $45,000,000 in June.

The estimated total of approximately $335,000,000 for the March-June period 1938 compares with payments approximating $287,000,000 for the same period in 1937, and $188,000,000 for the same period in 1936. The $335,000,000 estimate is exclusive of $100,000,000 cotton price adjustment payments because the extent to which they will be paid during the period has not yet been determined.

The major part of these payments will be made in connection with the 1937 agricultural conservation program. The estimate includes between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 that will be made monthly for diverting surplus farm products to by-product uses. It also includes approximately $22,000,000 in payments expected to be made under the sugar programs during the months of April, May, and June.

Setting Up Still and Boiling Mash Breaks Law Even if Liquor Not Made

Madison—The state supreme court declared today that the intermediate steps of making liquor—setting up a still and boiling mash—is evidence of a violation of law if the still is not licensed, regardless of whether any liquor actually has been made.

Justice Edward T. Fairchild issued this ruling in response to a request from Circuit Judge Clayton F. Van Pelt, who had found a man guilty under these circumstances.

The defendant is Milton Ross, of the town of Harris, Marquette county. Judge Van Pelt withheld sentencing him until the high court could determine whether there had been an actual violation of law.

Dr. Troxel Warns Parents to Guard Against Measles

16 New Cases Reported in Appleton Monday And Today

With 16 new cases of measles reported Monday and today in the city, Dr. John C. Troxel, city physician and health commissioner, warned parents to watch their children and report any indication of illness to the health department.

There is an epidemic of measles in Milwaukee, Dr. Troxel said, with 4,052 of 4,316 cases in the state reported in Milwaukee county. The sharp increase in cases reported in Appleton this week has caused the health department to exercise every care against the disease.

Symptoms of measles include sore throat, a cold and red eyes. The rash, which identifies the disease, does not appear for about four days, the doctor said. He warned parents to isolate sick children from others in the family and to call the family physician.

Dr. Troxel said the uncomplicated form of measles is not serious but complications, which sometimes accompany the disease, are dangerous. One case of measles insures a lifetime of immunity, Dr. Troxel said.

Police Broadcast Aids in Recovery Of Stolen Machine

Efficiency of the police radio broadcasting system was demonstrated yesterday when a stolen car was recovered within a half hour after a call was broadcast from Station WAKE, Oshkosh, yesterday afternoon.

A car owned by Dr. Sam Salam, Waupaca, was taken about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon from in front of his office. Captain Charles Steidl of the Outagamie county traffic squad received the call and saw the car on Highway 45 about six miles west of Appleton. Steidl heard the broadcast at 1:30 and sighted the machine at 2 o'clock.

Irving Handschke, New London, who was driving the machine, was taken into custody and turned over the Sheriff Dupcan Campbell of Waupaca county. Handschke pleaded guilty of driving a car without the owner's consent when he appeared before Justice of the Peace W. F. Johnson, Waupaca, and was bound over to circuit court for sentence.

Over Half Billion for Relief Between 1931-36

Madison—More than a half billion dollars has been spent for relief purposes from 1931 to 1936, the state welfare department announced today.

The federal government carried the heaviest part of the burden, supplying 62.9 per cent of the funds, while local funds amounted to 27.8 per cent, and contributions from the state were 9.3 per cent. A total of 51.7 per cent was used for special work programs, 35.4 per cent for direct relief, 8.8 per cent for institutional care, and 5.1 per cent for old age and blind pensions.

Urges Parents to Keep Children Off Highways

Parents were urged today by county motor vehicle police to caution their children against playing on the roads and highways. With the coming of mild weather many children have been found roller skating on the concrete highways and playing in water puddles along the roads. This is a dangerous practice and cooperation of parents may prevent serious accidents, the police said.

Dakotas Once Center of Duck Country, Club Told

Kaukauna — The life of wild fowl was the topic of Dr. R. V. Landis, Appleton, at last night's meeting of the Kaukauna Business and Professional Women's club at Hotel Kaukauna. Dr. Landis began his talk with a description of wild life in North Dakota as he found it when he moved there from Indiana when a young man.

"What is now called the duck bowl," Landis said, "was once a spot of lush growths of prairie grass. When farmers plowed this land under it was the same as removing trees in other parts of the country—the water of the district disappeared and most living matter died out."

Landis described wild life in its cycle through the seasons, telling of the habits of all the species which were present then in such large numbers. North Dakota was then the center of the duck country for North America, he stated.

The most beautiful bird in flight, in Dr. Landis' opinion, is the snow-goose, a white bird with black tip wings, an arrangement which makes the flock appear to change from white to black in flight. The Canada goose was termed the king bird of North America, a bird which due to its wily nature said never be extinct, Landis said.

Be A Safe Driver

No Wonder You Are Constipated!

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? Bread, meat, potatoes? No wonder you're constipated—due to lack of "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It means the kind of food that forms a soft, bulky mass in the bowels. It's this mass that helps your bowels move. The common sense thing to do about it is to eat a natural laxative food. Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast will give you just the "bulk" you need. And it gives you, in addition, Nature's great intestinal-boost, vitamin B₁. Eat this crunchy toasted cereal every day, drink plenty of water, and life will be brighter for you! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Sold by every grocer.

Quit wishing for a LaSalle... and get one!

IN THE NEIGHBORHOOD of a quarter of a million people who are now wishing they owned a LaSalle might just as well be driving one!

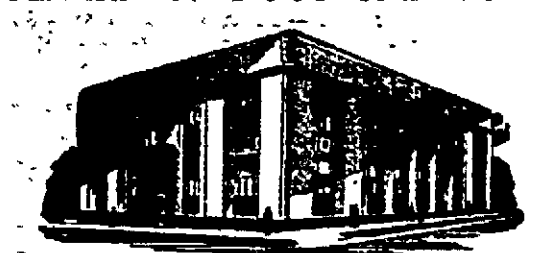

These people believe they can't afford LaSalle. Yet—they paid as much for their cars as a new LaSalle costs. And they save nothing on upkeep and operating costs—for LaSalle is recognized as the world's most economical fine car. Surely, we speak only common sense when we say that the man who pays the price of a LaSalle ought to get a LaSalle.

So check over your motor car investment. If you have been paying above a thousand dollars for your motor cars—make your next one a LaSalle. You're entitled to it, and you might as well have it!

WAS LORD MACAULEY RIGHT?

There are many in the United States today who will say that Lord Macauley's prediction regarding the fate of the United States, penned in a letter to the Hon. H. S. Randall of New York in 1857, has already come true.

Write Macauley:
"You are surprised to learn that I have not a high opinion of Mr. Jefferson, and I am surprised at your surprise. I am certain that I never wrote a line, and that I never in parliament, in conversation, or even on the hustings—a place where it is the fashion to court the populace—uttered a word indicating the opinion that the supreme authority in a state ought to be entrusted to the majority of citizens told by the head; in other words, to the poorest and most ignorant part of society. I have long been convinced that institutions purely democratic must, sooner or later, destroy liberty or civilization, or both."

"In Europe, where the population is dense, the effect of such institutions would be almost instantaneous. Either the poor would plunder the rich, and civilization would perish, or order and property would be saved by a strong military government, and liberty would perish. You may think that your country enjoys an exemption from these evils. I will frankly own to you that I am of a very different opinion. Your fate I believe to be certain, though it is deferred by a physical cause. As long as the government, extent of fertile and unoccupied land, your laboring population will be far more at ease than the laboring population of the Old World; and while this is the case the Jeffersonian policy may continue to exist without causing any fatal calamity. But the time will come when New England will be as thickly populated as Old England. Wages will be as low, and will fluctuate as with us."

"Through such seasons (depressions) the United States will have to pass. How will you pass through them? I heartily wish you a good deliverance. But my reason and wishes are at war, and I cannot help forbidding the worst. It is quite plain that your government will never be able to restrain a distressed and discontented majority. For you the majority is the government and has the rich, who are always a minority, absolutely at its mercy. The day will come when, in the state of New York, a multitude of people, none of whom had more than half a breakfast, or expects to have more than half a dinner, will choose the legislature. Is it possible to doubt what sort of a legislature will be chosen? On one side is a statesman with patience, respect for vested rights, strict observance of public faith. On the other side is a demagogue ranting about the tyranny of capitalists and users, and asking why anybody should be permitted to drink champagne, or to ride in a carriage while thousands of honest people are in want of necessities? Which of the two candidates is likely to be preferred by a workman who hears his children cry for bread? I seriously apprehend that you will, in some such season of adversity as I have described, do things which will prevent prosperity from returning; that you will act like some people in a year of scarcity; devour all the seedcorn, and this make the next year, not a year of scarcity, but of absolute failure. There will be, I fear, no more of the kind."

always free and open, even if straight and narrow.

Lord Macauley's forecast should be taken today not as a prediction come true, but as a stern warning of what may happen should the citizens of the United States become lax in guarding their one greatest heritage, liberty, and discard their one great trait, individualism, the power to think and act for themselves.

And it is a warning to a people adequately equipped to understand it to the fullest.

JAPAN DIVIDED

Japanese unity has been exaggerated by many outside observers. The unanimity which seemed to prevail at the beginning of the present war is vanishing, and perhaps was never real. The people very likely were swept by a wave of patriotic loyalty when the war began, as they would be in any other country, but their hearts were not in it. As the elections had shown, popular sentiment was liberal, even radical, and had steadily gone against the government. The war seems to have been started largely to distract attention from home troubles and to enforce loyalty.

Now, with the war dragging on much longer than the military leaders promised, casualties rising and costs increasing, both parliament and people seem to be rebelling. Gerold Eckelmann, an expert on Far East affairs, tells news men in New York that there is actual danger of a Communist revolution in Japan, and it is mainly by internal Japanese troubles that China will be saved.

"The situation in Japan," he says, "is curious and perhaps unprecedented in history. The army is trying to set up a dictatorship and has virtually made a figurehead of the emperor. The navy is opposed to the army. The industrialists don't like either, and may help the workers when the revolution comes."

This view helps to explain the sustained morale of the Chinese government and army in spite of their defeats. And if it is true, or even half true, it suggests that American alarm about the apparent menace of Japanese militarism may be much exaggerated.

STAMPS

Postmaster-General Farley has announced a complete revision of the regular series of postage stamps, the first since 1922. The new series "will commemorate terms of the President in chronological sequence."

Whether this means that the stamps will bear the portraits of the Presidents from George Washington on, as would be assumed ordinarily, is not clear. The present postmaster has shown an amazing fertility in varying stamp designs, so that it wouldn't be surprising to see the chief executives represented by a series of buildings, monuments, landscapes, lodge emblems or astrological symbols of their natures.

This is what comes of having a philatelist for top postmaster and another for chief executive. But the other philatelists, who seem to make a national majority now, don't seem to mind.

Some of us may note with regret the passing of the American Indian, the Golden Gate, Niagara Falls, the Statue of Liberty, the Buffalo, the Goddess of Freedom and other familiar engravings, from the northeast corner of our letters. But variety is the spice of correspondence and philately must be served.

UNEASY MONEY

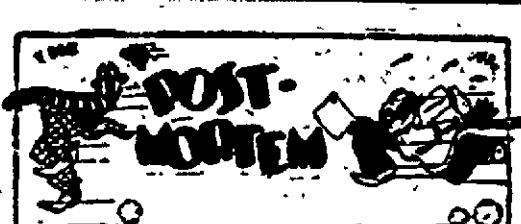

"Picture a person with one hand in his pocket, bulging with money, and scratching his head with the other, and you have a pretty fair description of the present predicament of many investors," writes a financial editor. "Whether to buy stocks, commodities or real estate as an inflation hedge, or any number of other securities of a different type, or to continue to wait for some tangible evidence of the future, is puzzling many throughout the country just now."

Most of us will say at once that, while we have worries enough, we're rather free from this particular worry, because our pockets are not "bulging with money." Yet there may be many such. And just now they would probably not go wrong if they invested moderately in any of the three—stocks, commodities or real estate. There is very good economic support for the belief that this recession is not going lower, and business is going to turn up some time this year, and there are good times ahead.

If any investor, instead of merely looking out for himself, is interested also in performing a public service, he would probably do well to buy goods or commodities in particular, because that quickly stimulates industry and makes work.

Opinions of Others

TRA-LA-LA!
Policeman "Jingles" Donohue, who wears a uniform of blue in Waterbury, Connecticut, is noted for his effieut. When motorists park over time he leaves for them this little rhyme:
"Don't park so long in a restricted station. Traffic is hindered by such stagnation. Police request your co-operation to cure a difficult situation. Keep the cars in circulation and give the cop a short vacation—Donohue the Cop."
Oh, Donohue, you kindly, warning has brightened up our gloomy morning. You've proved that even a patrolman can be a gentle and a droll man. Where other cops resort to curses you seek to get results by verses, in terms that we could not resist were we a Connecticut motorist. Your plea, we think, beyond all question, should serve to remedy congestion, and traffic should move in a hurry upon the streets of Waterbury. And so our hat is off to you, Policeman "Jingles" Donohue—New York World-Telegram.

I REALLY shouldn't comment on the reduction of Austria to the position of a German state. I really shouldn't. . . a while back, I had a field day when the Spanish loyalist airplanes "sank" a rebel gunboat and I could make faces at FDR's big navy program. . . then, later on, it appeared that a torpedo from a loyalist ship was what did the damage. . . and Landlubber, who disagreed with me publicly, no doubt has had several good laughs over the affair since then. . . all in all, it is apparent that I shouldn't comment on anything happening in Europe. . . but I probably will—even if Hitler never marched into Austria and the Nazi party has disbanded in favor of Stalin—and I will probably get my neck out again. . .

SPRING'S SNOWFALL

It was spring and the snow was falling in large white blankets upon the ground. The north winds again were calling As I turned to gaze around.

Few were the days with grasses green, Which now seem hidden from view, The robins we had heard and seen From the tempest seek shelter, too.

Gone, too, is the bright warm sunshine As the gray clouds cover her face. Old Man Winter committed a crime And brought on her disgrace.

For around the corner sometimes is found, That little old man who chuckles with glee; As he shakes the snow that covers the ground From his left-over supply of winter's snow-tree.

And although you thought him homeward bound, Don't be too sure of yourself. For sometime he's found hiding around In the form of a tiny elf.

Tho' many say the weather's advanced, When the calendar on the wall says "Spring!" But I'll say you're only taking a chance—The date doesn't mean a thing!

—Kaukauna's Hidden Lyric

If we are caught with a big snowstorm within the next few days, I can claim some of the luck that has been ascribed to the Saturday Evening Post. The Post, you recall, has had plenty of opportunity to brag about hitting the bullseye with routine articles about people and incidents that turn out to be spot news.

(Frixample: O. O. McIntyre and Dixie Davis.)

The hidden Lyric will have the poems returned as requested and is welcome to contribute at any time.

Your correspondent will have an announcement of minor interest to make at the end of the week.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

STRIVE AND STICK TO IT.

There are many books explaining The short cuts to happiness. There are rules for the attaining Of your own dreams of success. Old time virtues are derided. But the same way—as you view it—(By good sense forever guided) Is to strive, and to stick to it!

You deplore the careless phrasing Of those books of hope and cheer. You are not much for star-gazing. You belong to Now and Here! By the cold light of your reason, Your path gleams as you pursue it; To forego it would be treason. So you strive, and you stick to it!

Not for gain and not for glory Do you work day after day. Life unfolds its ancient story, And your attitude is gay. For pure joy in the endeavor You track down the job and do it, Asking nothing better ever Than to strive and to stick to it! (Copyright, 1938)

Looking Backward

10 YEARS AGO

More than 100 persons were swept to death early Monday in San Francisco canyon when St. Francis dam, impounding part of the Los Angeles water supply, burst and unloosed a 75-foot wall of water into the narrow valley. Officials expressed fear that the death toll might reach 400.

Joshua L. Johns, former Appleton attorney and now secretary to Governor Zimmerman, was in the city Tuesday checking over plans for the governor's visit here March 20.

Voting was light in Appleton Tuesday as voters went to the polls to choose candidates for offices ranging from the mayor down.

Mrs. Mark Catlin was chosen general chairman in charge of arrangements for the entertainment of "Lady Lions" who will attend the district Lions convention here in June at a meeting of about 35 wives of members of the Local Lions club at Hotel Northern Monday noon. Various committee heads are as follows: Hospitality, Mrs. Frank Younger and Mrs. William Falatich; transportation, Mrs. J. H. Farley and Mrs. J. E. Whittman; musical, Mrs. Charles Reinick and Mrs. Eric Lindberg; first luncheon committee, Mrs. L. J. Cameron and Mrs. O. R. Kloehn; second luncheon committee, Mrs. E. B. Morse and Mrs. R. J. White; bridge, Mrs. John Goodland and Mrs. David Smith.

I. M. Mann, government engineer, will leave this week for Panama where he will spend a month inspecting the new ditch in an unofficial capacity.
Carl Keller left for Oshkosh today to attend the meeting of the Fox River Valley Jeweler's club.
Charles Lueck of Chilton was in Appleton today on business.
Herman Pauli, Seymour, former supervisor from Kaukauna, was in the city yesterday.
New cars for those who put in their orders last winter are beginning to arrive. Albert Gorges has received a shipment of four Cadillac autos for A. Weisenborn, a phaeton; A. S. CALCIUM AND NERVES

Nutrition authorities (I'll name 'em on request, if any one is disposed to question it) find that the American dietary is more often deficient in calcium than in any other element.

The amount of phosphorus assimilated or utilized in the body bears a relation or ratio to the amount of calcium assimilated or utilized in human nutrition.

An important factor in the control of calcium and phosphorus metabolism or assimilation or utilization in the body is the daily intake of vitamin D.

Physiologists (I'll name 'em on request if anybody is disposed to question it) find that one function of calcium is to control nervous irritability, and when the calcium assimilation or intake is low the nerves and other tissues become excessively irritable.

An important feature of the rest cure for "nervous prostration" or "neurasthenia" made famous by Weis Mitchell and still followed to a considerable extent is milk diet.

Milk is the richest natural food source of calcium; that is, milk and milk products.

In the gay nineties and for a while thereafter a good many college professors, clergymen, lawyers, even a few physicians, hearing the society leaders and movie actresses to it by a few decades, permitted their enthusiastic testimonials to the value of a "nerve food tonic" to be published. Then some cynical persons exposed the nerve food tonic, pointing out that it was virtually a glorified cottage cheese mixture. Cottage cheese, dear children, is the tops among foods, in both calcium and phosphorus content. Maybe that expensive nostrum was nearly as good as the naive college professors, lawyers, ministers and physicians said it was in their testimonials.

Children and adults who get plenty of sunshine on naked skin are usually calm, self-reliant, steady, these who get little or none are more likely to be nervous, jumpy, peevish, irritable, restless—a difference of vitamin D intake, but send for "Nerves and Nutrition" if you are inclined that way.

This new booklet—if I had a mind to expand and pad it up in the way modern books are made—would set you back at least two simoleans instead of a dime and a stamped envelope bearing your address.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Adhesions

If doctor says X-ray pictures show chronic appendicitis with adhesions, is there any remedy besides operation? (H. T. A.)

Answer—Diagnosis of chronic appendicitis is always doubtful, usually wrong. Adhesions nearly always follow acute inflammation, and usually cause no trouble.

Cyst in Eyelid

Boy, six, has lump in upper and lower eyelids. Doctor says upper must be removed by operation, but to let lower lump alone and it will presently disappear. (Mrs. E. M.)

Answer—Upper lump probably chalazion, Meibomian cyst, requires removal thru incision thru lining of lid, under local anesthesia. Lower lump probably hordeolum (stye), best treated with applications of hot moist compresses. Many folds gauze kept wet with teaspoonful boric acid and teaspoonful common salt to pint of water) and smearing edges of lids at night with boric acid salve or plain soft petrolatum.

What's In a Carrot?

Please advise how all can be extracted from carrots. I understand it contains a great deal of vitamin

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVE

Washington—This town is so super-saturated with talk about the mechanisms and dangers of war that the subject worms into every discussion.

It is a rare day when a White House press conference closes without some reference to warfare or the intricacies of international relationships, growing out of current wars or scares of wars.

Take a sample day. In a spot or two it is a composite of two or more days, but the picture is the same—of the wide variety of war-torned business afoot.

10:30 a. m.—President Roosevelt is asked at his press conference whether he still is convinced the battleship is essential to the first line of defense. He concedes there is room for argument but points out that the skilled military minds of all countries are focused on the issue—and all of them go ahead with battleship building. That, he says, is what he has recommended in his "billion dollar" navy program.

11:00—House naval affairs committee hears Glenn L. Martin, airplane manufacturer, plead for doubling the air quota in the naval program. He contends that $106,000,000 is not enough. It ought to be doubled. Even while Martin testifies, Lester B. Barlow, wartime inventor of the atomic bomb, impatiently asks the committee room. He says he has a secret design for mines which can be shored from the air upon an enemy navy, filling the water so full of death-lodes that clusters of battle craft will be sunk trying to work their way to safe waters. He protests he is not given a fair hearing that the navy department is trying to smother his ideas.

12:00—Senator Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the foreign relations committee, demands that $600,000,000 be added to the billion dollar naval program. A billion, he says, isn't enough, what with so much trouble piling up across both waters.

12:30 p. m.—President Roosevelt lays claim to two pill-box islands, 1,200 miles south of Hawaii. Nothing much grows on them, not even fresh water, and mighty little use can be made of them except in trans-Pacific flying. In case of war, it is pointed out, they might be useful as landing fields for land or sea planes.

1 p. m.—Lunch. Two reporters covering the Treasury Department debate over their pie and cheese sandwich whether Japan can finance her armies long enough to sponge upon the Chinese mess. And if the U. S. went to war with Japan, would England step in to aid or help out? Or would it perhaps stand on the sidelines for two years, as we did in the World war.

2 p. m.—Foes of the present war-profits bill declare it does not take the profits out of war but converts any war-time President into a dictator with absolute power over all industrial, military and civil affairs.

3 p. m.—The maritime commission awards contracts for freighters to a small Florida shipyard with a two-fold purpose:

1. It desires to show up the big yards, whose bids were a million dollars a ship more than the commission deemed reasonable.

2. Equally important, the commission hoped the contract would establish a useful ship

New London Fish, Game Club Names Lasch President

Report on Membership Drive Shows Enrolment of 175

New London — Art Lasch was elected president of the New London Fish and Game club at a meeting last night to succeed M. J. Heinz, the organization's first president of a year ago. William Karuhn is vice president and L. J. Polaski continues as secretary-treasurer.

Heinz was given a director's post for one year. Frank Schumacher was re-elected as a director for a three year period and Harry Allen was elected a director for three years.

The new president took over the meeting at the Veterans of Foreign Wars hall after the election. A report on the membership drive showed an enrolment of 175 members and it was decided to continue an intensive drive for several more weeks.

Secretary Polaski reported on the meeting of the county conservation committee with the commission at Madison a month ago and urged every member of the club to keep a complete record of pike caught this spring to present as evidence to the commission when the fish are spawned out when caught here. State men will be checking this area during the season, he warned, and convincing proof will be necessary if an early season is to be secured again next year.

Will Record Data
A meeting of the New London club will be held April 4 prior to the opening of the pike season to instruct all fishermen on the recording of proper data for the commission.

President Lasch reported that a shipment of 130 mature pheasant hens is expected from the state game farm to the New London club sometime this spring. The club received 50 cocks from the state last fall and a few members, principally directors, have maintained several feeding stations for the birds throughout the winter.

A small delegation of the New London club plans to attend a meeting of the Neenah Rod and Gun club at the Neenah city hall this evening when it is expected pike fishing on the Wolf river and in Lake Winnebago will be discussed.

Bankers Discuss Service Charges

Waupaca County Association Holds Dinner at New London

New London — A general discussion on bank service charges and the Waupaca county deputy guard unit was led by W. G. Coarman, secretary of the Wisconsin Bankers' association at a meeting of the Waupaca County Bankers' association at the Elwood hotel last night. About 45 men attended the 7 o'clock dinner and took part in the discussions.

The county association urged all member banks to adopt the uniform minimum service charge set by state code and which are now in use by most banks in this area. It also was decided to retain the deputy guards and the reward insurance providing $500 reward to anyone aiding or causing the arrest of bank robbers in the county.

C. M. Matthews, review examiner for the state banking department at Madison, explained state requirements to the group.

18 Register at First Workers' School Class

New London — Eighteen men and women registered last night for instructions at the school for workers at Washington High school. Study was begun immediately on parliamentary law and public speaking and the history of the labor movement in America.

E. N. Caley, high school economics teacher, is the instructor in charge. Classes will be held each Monday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock for a period of 10 weeks. The school is for all citizens of this area and is sponsored by the New

Four Candidates in Race for Aldermanic Job in Third Ward

New London — Aldermanic ballots will be split many ways at the city election April 5 according to number of candidates who have taken out nomination papers.

Four more candidates appeared for alderman in the Third ward with Sylvester Stern and Earl Curry taking out papers over the weekend besides Harold Pieper, incumbent. John Yost circulated papers last week.

In the Fifth ward papers were taken out for Gordon Levinsohn and Henry Hoffman in opposition to the present alderman, William Behm. Otto Stern is circulating papers for reelection in the Fourth ward.

Seat Ehrenreich As Head of Legion

Commander of New London Post Installed at County Council Session

New London — Helmut Ehrenreich was installed commander of the Norris-Spencer post of the American Legion and Henry Hoffman vice commander at a meeting of the Waupaca County council at the New London clubhouse last night.

W. R. Kenney, Marshfield, district commander, was installing officer and afterwards spoke on the Americanism program of the American Legion. Judge A. M. Scheller of Waupaca was a guest speaker and spoke broadly on the subject of Americanism. Francis J. Meinhardt reported on his work as county service officer.

The New London post postponed its regular meeting to next Monday evening but it was decided last night to hold a Waupaca-Outagamie county rally of Legionnaires at New London May 20. State and district officers will be guests at the rally.

An invitation was extended to attend the annual American Legion State Fishing party at Fremont May 21 and 22.

Two supervisors of the Shawano county board, Harold Vallen and H. A. Habighorst, were present at the county meeting last night to investigate the advantages of hiring a service officer in the county.

Flag Pole to be Placed On Grounds at Hospital

Rotary Club Entertains Championship Cage Squad

New London — The probability of dropping high school basketball tournaments from the schedule of conference activities within a few years was voiced by Coach D. N. Stacy yesterday noon when the New London Rotary club entertained the 1938 Class B district champion basketball team at a dinner at the Elwood hotel.

Impromptu talks were requested of Coaches Stacy and Gregory Charlesworth and members of the Rotary club when the scheduled speaker, Sports Editor Gordon T. Intyre of the Appleton Post-Crescent, was unable to attend. Stacy pointed out that there were many arguments for and against the tournament system but that the trend showed many large colleges and high schools dropping out because the physical strain is considered injurious to the players. He explained the present conference set-up and ventured the opinion that some other plan may be evolved to supplant the tournament system and still give all teams an equal chance for seasonal honors.

Rotarians praised the causers for their showing at the Kaukauna tournament last week and credited Stacy for his work in developing a new, inexperienced team into a championship aggregation. Members of the squad were introduced individually to the club.

After taking the district championship for the fourth time in five years, the New London club is pointing to state competition this year. They are scheduled to meet Merrill for regional honors at Stevens Point the latter part of this week, probably Thursday or Friday evening. The one game will decide which team goes to Madison. Practice was skipped yesterday but will be resumed today as the team prepares for the crucial game.

Little is known of the strength of the Merrill team except that they won seven of twelve games and finished in the upper bracket of a strong conference, taking the district title from Tomahawk by a score of 29 to 16.

Adrian Bevers Directs Building of New Dam

Little Chute — Adrian Bevers, who has charge of the building of the new hydro station and dam at Grandfather Falls, 10 miles north of Merrill, spent the weekend at his home here. The C. R. Meyer Construction company, by whom Mr. Bevers is employed, has been awarded the contract of building the new dam at Lower Grandfather Falls. This new dam will create a reservoir between the two dams, 110 feet wide and will increase the head of the Lower dam from 53 feet to 93 feet. The contract calls for the excavation of 16,000 yards of granite and 140,000 yards of earth. This work is being done for the Wisconsin Public Service corporation which has its headquarters for this section at Green Bay. The contract calls for the completion of this job by Nov. 15.

Van Asten Rites to be Conducted Tomorrow

Preemptive Bid Upsets Opponents

BY ELY CULBERTSON

Yesterday I published a letter which described a very unusual type of preemptive trap. A player, with a very fine hand and with distribution the precise opposite of what it usually should be to warrant a shutout bid, deliberately opened with three spades on a four card suit. His reason for doing this was that he had as an opponent a player who regarded shutout bids as a bull doze and a red flag. As per his usual practice, this opponent rushed into the trap with a four heart overcall, was met with a double, and was defeated to the tune of 2,000 points.

The following letter describes the result of an orthodox preemptive bid:

"Dear Sir: You have preached so much on the desirability of making it difficult for the opponents to 'get together' in their bidding that I am sure you will be interested in the incident hand:

South, dealer
Both sides vulnerable.

♠ 9 3 2
♥ 10 8 5
♦ A 3

EAST

♠ A 8 7 3
♥ K 7 6 4 2
♦ A 8 5 4

SOUTH
♠ A K Q 10 8 6 5
♥ J 9
♦ Q J 9

"My partner, South, dealt and bid three spades. West passed and I raised to four. East squirmed a bit but obviously could not bring himself to a possibly fatal plunge, and passed.

"West opened the diamond ace and, on a high card from his partner, continued with diamonds. East went with the king and returned a third round which West ruffed. The defenders then collected a heart and a club, and we were down two, but South's honors reduced our loss to the insignificant total of 100 points.

"It was what we saved that made me so very grateful to the preemptive bid. As you will note, if East and West had been permitted to 'get together' and exchange sufficient information they probably would have reached a small slam in hearts. As a matter of fact, due to the good break in the diamond suit, thirteen tricks would have been a laydown at hearts and, although the grand slam could not have been bid, even a small slam would have been bid enough from the viewpoint of partner and self. Of course, we were lucky in finding the adverse honors so divided that neither defender could enter the auction with impunity at the four or five level. But I have noted on uncountable occasions that this sort of 'luck' is quite usual after a preemptive bid. In fact, I suppose it is definitely unlucky to find one's opponent with so much strength that he can take safe action.

"The peculiar part is that if South had opened with one spade, whether or not West found the courage to overcall, I, of course, would have bid only two clubs and East, with such splendid distribution, certainly would have risked either a take-out double or a two diamond overcall. After that, West would have been bid enough from the viewpoint of partner and self. Of course, we were lucky in finding the adverse honors so divided that neither defender could enter the auction with impunity at the four or five level. But I have noted on uncountable occasions that this sort of 'luck' is quite usual after a preemptive bid. In fact, I suppose it is definitely unlucky to find one's opponent with so much strength that he can take safe action.

Work done to a standard, duty well performed, has a positive effect for good on the character of the worker. It may seem a little thing to rule a sheet of paper in a set way, head it according to a set scheme, but that little attention to style and form has its beneficial effect on the child's character. It will help him present his work in shape to attract praise in days to come, when that praise will be important to him. Style and form, in any field of effort, are big elements in success. They are the best sort of start. Work done with accuracy is a training in skill, in honesty, in

Uncle Ray's Corner

A Tea Party in Tokyo

Tokyo, Japan: About 12 years ago, a Japanese woman named Ichiko Kamichika Suzuki wrote to me asking permission to translate one of my books, "The Child's Story of the Human Race," into the Japanese language. I wrote back to her saying I would be glad to have her do so.

Japanese women taking tea at high table.

The book was published in a two-volume edition. From time to time since then I have received letters from Japanese readers. In fact, scores of Japanese men and women, boys and girls, have written to me.

Before starting on this trip, it was my hope to meet some of the readers who had written to me, and here in Tokyo my wish has come true. Thanks to the kindness of Mrs. Suzuki and her husband, a tea party with about 25 persons present was held at a Tokyo hotel soon after my arrival.

We spent two hours together, and they were interesting hours for me. I talked with one after another of the guests. Most of them could speak a little English, and I found that one was the editor of a magazine. Another told me he was "just a plain workman," and was sorry he could not speak much English.

Still another guest was a girl about 15 years of age. She came late, and seemed very shy as she joined the party. At the end she gave me a present, a square piece of very beautiful cloth. She said the cloth came from a kimono which had been worn by a Japanese princess who lived long ago. Newspapers and photographers also came to our party, and there were times when I was kept busy answering their questions and posing for pictures.

The guests were served with tea (Japan's national drink) and with cakes on the order of French pastry. The pastry served to me was very good. I found that out when I took one bite, but it was the only bite I had. There were so many things to do at the party, and I moved about so much, that it was all over before I had time to take a second bite!

I did not mind that. People are more important than food. I enjoyed every minute I spent talking with the guests.

Near the end, I gave a talk about my travels to the group. One newspaperman translated my words into Japanese for the benefit of those who did not understand English well enough.

One subject I did not speak about at the party was the warfare between Japan and China. The Japanese, as a rule, do not dare to say anything against the war.

Best Work Usually Done After Age of 40 Years

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—Believe it or not, but there is still an incredible number of women and men who are victims of the age complex and who become pessimistic, lose their ambition and initiative, throw up their hands and quit after they reach the middle thirties. Worse still, they resent any one of their age not thinking as they do and retiring into dull obscurity as they have. They bitterly criticize those men and women who take care of their looks, dress well and keep on with whatever work they are doing. I am a trained nurse, and my long experience proves to me beyond doubt that while too many people do age early, countless numbers are at their best physically and mentally, in the middle years, and not a few in late life. What can we do to help overcome so much unnecessary depression due to the old-time calendar complex? A.D.

Answer: The people who permit themselves to become prematurely aged in these days are the sit-down strikers in life. They are the weaklings and the cowards who do not want to work or fight; so they make their age their alibi for laziness and for shirking all of their duties and responsibilities.

The woods are full of hale and hearty men and women who climb up on the shelf when they are old, and aged and never hit another lick as long as they live, although they have still thirty or forty years of good work in them. Half of the beggars who entreat us to help a poor old man or woman are plenty young to help themselves if they would, and there are few of us who do not help some aged relative who is younger than we are.

And who does not know parents who make a racket of their age and force their children to support them when they are far more able to work than the children are? After Bob and Sally get jobs, Father throws up his hands and becomes too old and feeble to do anything but play pool and loaf around a bar. Mother is so aged and infirm that the girls have to do the housework after standing behind her all day while she goes to the movies.

But you can't do anything to rejuvenate these people who have the old age complex because they don't want to be young. Age is their graft and they make the most of it. We are moved to mirth very often over the figures of fun that people, and especially women, make of themselves when they are trying to flout the calendar and act and look like sixteen instead of sixty. Goodness knows, they are funny enough with their dyed hair and painted faces and flapper clothes, but at that they have something admirable that those lack who have surrendered to age. They have pep and they have spunk, and they are still trying to do something in the world instead of being cumberers of the ground.

As for any one thinking that middle age is a deadline that they can't cross, that is nonsense. It takes us until we are forty to learn our jobs and our best work is done after that. That is when we begin to reap what we have sown.

Dear Dorothy Dix—I am 21 years of age. Have a high school education and am refined and cultured. Have a talented knack for writing songs and short stories. Now for my problem: Would I be doing wrong if I went to some large city and inserted an advertisement in some paper offering to marry a lady of wealth so that I could devote all of my time to writing? The job I now have leaves me so tired at night that I just can't write. I have high principles and ideals and would be good to any woman who married me. Could I be happy if I made a marriage only for ARTS' sake? What is your advice.

SONNY.

Answer: Well, Sonny, I don't believe that there are many ladies of wealth who are looking for husbands in the advertising columns of the newspapers, so I am afraid that your chances of staking yourself

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

It is impossible to over-emphasize the need of planting roses early in the spring. In sections where spring is already under way, the plants should go into the ground immediately. In colder sections, orders should be placed promptly. The reason for this advice is that the best roses are those purchased when dormant, before any sign of growth can be seen. If they are planted in good soil, with the knob on the stem just under the surface, and the earth firmed carefully around them, with the feet, to make sure no air pockets are left, they are almost sure to make a

Healthy Hair Takes Better Wave

BY ELSIE PIERCE

I'm making a collection, by subject, of the nice notes I receive now and then, from readers volunteering all sorts of interesting information. The following comments on hair care should be interesting, because I am sure you will want to do something about your hair and put the glints there to team up with the mad cap hats for spring.

From Mrs. C. H. O., who has had "the most successful permanent in four years" and is elated over the fact:

"I live in the suburbs and there are only a handful of shops and operators anyway. I have always had my waves with the operator I think the best in these parts, but they were never quite as good as I felt they could be. Last fall my operator told me that the upkeep in effort as well as expense could be cut down considerably, the wave stand up better and look lovelier if I 'preconditioned my hair' first. She said, 'hair gets run down, just as the body does, and you can't expect hair that isn't in condition to take a tip top permanent.' I took her advice, and took a course of five scalp treatments with diligent home-work in between. I wish I could convince others—I wish I could show it from the housepets, because it's true and not just high pressure salesmanship. Healthy hair does take a better wave. I found that out and am happy to report the best wave I've ever had."

Another note from W. B. D., whose slogan used to be "never say dye"—"I was always afraid to have anything with color in it used on my hair, afraid to dye and because one hand-dresser said that all coloring agents are essentially dyes never wanted anything used. Very recently financial reverses made it necessary for me to have the gray toned down. A shampoo tint did it, and so, unobtrusively that my best friends apparently haven't even noticed. Now I feel that every head ought to wear more color, not only the gray."

My bulletins on general care of the hair at home are yours for a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope.

ABC'S IN MANNERS

This is a continuation of a list of questions sent me by a high school. I shall print as many of their fifty questions as there is space for under this same heading, each week, until they are all answered.

9. Is "Pardon me" correct or should we say "Excuse me?"

Answer: Never say "Pardon me," which is a tabu phrase. Say "I beg your pardon" for something that is quite a serious offense, such as running into somebody or spilling something. It is always proper to say "Excuse me" or "I'm sorry."

"I'm sorry" is a little more emphatic than "Excuse me"—"Excuse me" for passing you—"I'm sorry" means that you have to pass to leave a bus or to get to your seat beyond theirs. If you really disturb somebody, or they have to make an effort to let you pass them, then you say "I'm sorry."

10. After the meal is over, on which side is the napkin placed? Should it be placed there unfolded? If staying for another meal, should it be folded?

Answer: If you are staying for only one meal, you lay the napkin crumpled together, but not really folded at the left of your plate. If you are staying for another meal, you fold it.

11. Do you send invitations to funerals?

Answer: When a funeral is private, notice is sent to intimate friends whom the family especially care for. Members of the family are expected to go without any notice. That is, they are expected to find out for themselves where and when the funeral is to be.

12. If a boy is a stranger to your parents, and the boy and girl are going into the house, who should go in first?

Answer: The girl goes in first. The always goes ahead of the boy, just exactly as the lady goes ahead of a gentleman.

13. At a dance, when a girl has gone to a rest room, is it correct for her escort to dance with another girl? Should he wait for her to come back?

Answer: If you really mean a rest room where she has gone because she is tired, certainly he would dance with some one else until she finally puts in an appearance. But if you mean dressing room, where she has merely gone to rearrange her hair and powder her nose and will be gone only a minute or two, he should wait for her.

14. Is it ever permissible for a man to keep his glove on when shaking hands with a woman? If so, does he remark about it?

Answer: He keeps on white evening gloves but he takes off his street glove before shaking hands. If he is passing her in a crowd so that he hasn't time to take off his street glove, he then says, "Excuse my glove." (Never say, "Pardon my glove.")

My Neighbor Says—

You can control the density and form of evergreens by pinching the buds at the tips of the branches. This can be done at any time of the year, but March is the best month in which to do it.

Go around with an oil can when housecleaning. Oil the castors on furniture, put a few drops of oil in the oil hole of the vacuum cleaner, and if the hinges on the doors squeak, oil them.

Winter killed out it back to live wood as soon as the extent of the damage can be learned. As a rule, privet hedges treated in this way make thicker and bushier growth than before, and are really improved.

When painting screens cover a small block of wood with an old piece of carpet. Tack carpet securely to the wood, dip into paint and rub over screens. The work is done quickly and well if this method is used.

Diced pineapple added to cabbage salad gives it a delicious flavor.

TWO EGGS IN ONE

Tulsa, Okla. (AP)—Every second day, regularly as the clock, the three-year-old Leghorn hen of Louis Buck lays an egg with a double yolk.

That's just in the spring, however. When summer comes she'll start laying regular eggs. At least, that's the way it has been in the past.

The double eggs are six and a half inches around, in one direction and eight inches in the other and they weigh a quarter of a pound.

The hen is the only one in a flock of 30 to produce such eggs.

MORE ABOUT PRESCRIPTIONS

By H. SCHLINTZ of Schlitz Bros. Co.

The care which must be exercised in filling prescriptions is as important for the case of "green apple effects" as in typhoid pneumonia.

Accuracy, and equally essential, proper equipment are paramount. Druggists who consider service first never relax their vigilance in filling prescriptions nor neglect to double check the compound before it is delivered.

Such vigilance safeguards the patient's health and the reputation of the doctor who writes the prescription.

Make sure that your prescription goes to a drug store where mistakes are not possible.

I KEEP PARING THIS CORN, BUT IT ALWAYS COMES BACK

CORNS COME BACK BIGGER-UGLIER

OLD-FASHIONED home paring is dangerous! It means risk of infection and only affects the surface of a corn—leaves the root! To come back bigger, uglier, more painful than ever!

Don't take chances. Follow the example of millions and play safe with the modern, double-action Blue-Jay method. The tiny medicated Blue-Jay plaster stops pain instantly by removing pressure, then in 3 short days the corn lifts out root and all (exceptionally stubborn cases may require a second application). Blue-Jay is easy to use—invisible. Safe—scientific—quick-acting. Only 25¢ for a package of 6. Same price in Canada.

Water Board Will Ask Reduction in Rates for Neenah

Permission for 15 Per Cent Slash Will be Sought by Commission

Neenah—The Neenah Waterworks commission at a meeting last night at the city hall tentatively agreed to a 15 per cent reduction in water rates and a 10 per cent discount for cash payment of bills on water used.

The decision which will involve more than a $10,000 reduction in revenue each year, is subject to the approval of the state public service commission, and City Clerk H. S. Zemlock was instructed by the commission to submit the plan to the public service commission for its approval.

It is planned to have the change in rate schedule, the purpose of which is to sell more water, go into effect April 1, providing the commission approves of the plan.

The 10 per cent discount for cash payment of bills will be applicable on the actual amount of water used and not on the service or meter charge, it is planned. In order to obtain this 10 per cent discount consumers must pay bill by the fifteenth day of the month on which quarter bills are due. Water consumers currently are charged 10 per cent penalty on their bills if they don't pay them by the tenth day of the month.

There also will be changes in classifications up to the 300,000 to one million gallons classification. The latter will not be affected.

The commission voted to put a sale price of $9,000 on the 365 horsepower semi-diesel oil engine which is no longer in use at the water works.

Ethics Important Part of VNA Work, Neenah Club Told

Staff Supervisor Outlines Service Features of Nurse Program

Neenah—Practicing ethics similar to that of the medical profession, nurses working for the Twin City Visiting Nurse association hold in confidence anything that may arise in a family which they are nursing, Miss Lydia Bouressa, staff supervisor, told members of the Neenah club at a noon meeting Monday at the club's rooms.

Miss Bouressa told the club that the association was instrumental in helping decrease the infant and maternal death rate in Neenah and Menasha by pre-natal and infant care.

The aim of the association, which was inaugurated here in 1908, is to promote health in the individual, family and community, the nurse said. She related the history of the service, comparing the work done 20 years ago to that which is done today. Miss Bouressa said that the association primarily offers bedside service, but that an essential part of its program is to instruct.

The visiting nurses work in close association with doctors of the Twin Cities in giving care to the sick whether or not they are able to pay for it. She recounted in detail the functions of the various committees of the association, the work of the nurses in the field, and the group's work with insurance and benefit companies.

Neenah Society

Neenah—Miss Lydia Bouressa, Visiting Nurse staff supervisor, was guest speaker at the American Legion auxiliary meeting Monday evening in S. A. Cook armory, presenting a discussion on "Child Welfare and Its Effect on a Community." Miss Bouressa stressed the care of pre-school children, the education program of the V. N. A. and the advantages of the dental and child welfare clinics which the association sponsors. She stated that it is only through the generous support of the community that this work is possible. Mrs. Howard Thornton was program chairman. Hostess chairman were Mrs. George Dederer and Mrs. Harold Christoph. Plans to sponsor a benefit movie, "Happy Landings," with Sonja Henje and Don Ameche were discussed by auxiliary members. Proceeds will be used for a community service project.

Mrs. Nellie Hutchins and Miss Mabel Williams won prizes in bridge at the Past Matrons 1 o'clock luncheon at the home of Mrs. W. Thompson, 547 Oak street, Monday afternoon. Mrs. Ann Bessex was assisting hostess.

Sturgeon Fishing Season Ends Today On Lake Winnebago

Menasha—The sturgeon fishing season on Lake Winnebago closed today after being open since January 15. Shanties used by the fishermen must be removed from the ice immediately, according to Wisconsin Conservation commission regulations, and the hole in the ice must be marked.

Although the commission regulations state that the opening must be fenced off, custom has been to accept other satisfactory warning signals. Many fishermen place discarded Christmas trees in the openings.

In general, Twin City fishermen reported a successful season. The largest fish speared weighed 111 pounds and was landed by Frank Chadek, 227 E. Doty avenue, Neenah. Albert Koepske, 234 Bond street, Neenah, landed one weighing 84 pounds. Other fishermen reported quite numerous catches of fish weighing from 20 to 30 pounds.

Cummings Lauds Hull's Pan-American Policy in Talk to League Chapter

THAT THE DEVELOPMENT of the ideal of cooperation and mutual understanding between the countries of North and South America is being brought about as the result of the seventh international congress held in Montevideo at which Cordell Hull made a definite statement of the "good neighbor" policy of the United States toward South America was brought out in a talk by Dr. Richard Cummings, assistant professor of American history at Lawrence college, at a meeting of the Pan-American League Monday afternoon at Ormsby hall.

Dr. Cummings, speaking on "The Development of Pan-Americanism," gave a picture of the relation of the United States to the development of the idea of a united group of nations in the Americas, an idea which originated with the Spanish-American patriot, Simon Bolivar. In this country Henry Clay was the foremost exponent and most ardent supporter of the recognition by the United States of the new states which had broken away from Spain in the early nineteenth century, said the speaker.

During Monroe's administration, he said, England proposed a joint agreement with the United States to regulate affairs with the Latin American countries. Monroe sought the advice of Jefferson and Madison, he continued, and all three separately considered the matter and came to the same conclusion, namely, the advisability of such an alliance with England.

However, John Quincy Adams, then secretary of state, opposed the move, advising instead that the United States formulate its own policy, which became known as the Monroe Doctrine. The four principles embodied in this doctrine have had various interpretations. Dr. Cummings explained, stating that the changes in interpretation might be divided into three periods as follows: "faith" in ourselves and our own democratic ideals; "hope" that our own actions, especially commercial, might be furthered; and "love" or the "good neighbor" policy now in force.

The period of "faith" was ended with the World war, he continued, when the South and Central American countries, refusing to accept the leadership of the United States in its isolation policy, joined the League of Nations. The period of "hope" was represented by Secretary Blaine's idea of Pan-Americanism, which consisted of a desire for trade agreements for reciprocity in tariffs which would result greatly to the advantage of the United States, Dr. Cummings stated.

Fear Developed
Although Pan-American conferences were held with outward professions of friendship, the speaker continued, the result of our Latin American policy was the development of a feeling of hostility on the part of South America toward the United States. Fear of this country was strong at the beginning of the twentieth century, he went on, and among other factors which strengthened that fear in addition to our own trade practices and imperialistic policy was European propaganda which was carried on in the inter-war European trade.

The beginning of a change in this feeling came in the seventh international congress at which Cordell Hull made a definite statement to the effect that the United States would no longer try to wield the "big stick" over south America, Dr. Cummings stated. Hull pointed out that trouble in South America during the recent years has been the result of the United States alone, but of all the countries of this hemisphere, the declaration instituted the period of "love," the speaker said, and the Monroe Doctrine was interpreted to mean not that the United States should interfere when disputes arose between Latin American countries, but that, in case of disputes, all the countries of North and South America should act together to arbitrate.

The next general meeting will be April 11 at which time the program will stress the celebration of Pan-American day.

In addition to the regular meetings of the league, three smaller study groups hold additional sessions. Miss Alice E. Whitcomb, chairman of the group which is studying literature of and about Latin America, and Mrs. A. Sigman are head of the Latin American current events group, while Miss Charlotte M. Lorenz has charge of the language group. The language group meets in two sections, one at 8 o'clock each Tuesday morning and the other at 4:30 Wednesday afternoons. The combined enrollment of the two classes is over 30. The time and place of meetings for the literature and current events groups have not been set.

Miss Anna M. Tarr and Miss Whitcomb were hostesses at the meeting yesterday. Fifty-five persons signed the constitution as charter members.

Catholic Daughters To Hold St. Patrick's Day Party Thursday

There'll be plenty of good Irish fellowship at the St. Patrick's card party to be sponsored by Catholic Daughters of America Thursday night at Conway hotel if the committee in charge has anything to say about it, for in order to promote the spirit of friendliness and to away with any hint of classiness there will be no pivot tables at the party. All players to progress. Schafkopf and contract and auction bridge will be played beginning at 8 o'clock.

To add to the Irish spirit of the occasion, the committee has arranged for a soloist to sing several Irish songs during the serving of refreshments. Miss Mabel Burke is chairman of the committee in charge which includes 28 members of the court whose names or ancestors are Irish.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Koehler, 1133 W. Oklahoma street, and Mr. and Mrs. Otto Mielke, Seymour, attended the funeral of Mr. Koehler's brother, Herman Koehler, at West Bloomfield Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. B. J. Krautkramer, 62 W. Second street, will leave Saturday to make their home at Stevens Point.

Soprano to Sing Here March 24

R CSE BAMPTON, distinguished Metropolitan mezzo-soprano, will be heard Thursday night, March 24, at Lawrence Memorial chapel on the Community Artists series.

Born in Cleveland and raised in Buffalo, she studied music at the Curtis Institute of Music. For five years she was a scholarship pupil of the most prominent teachers there, among them Horatio Connell.

Miss Bampton made her first popular success in the summer of 1929 as a member of the Chautauqua Opera association and was then chosen to appear at the Worcester festival in the autumn. Her performance brought her contracts with the Philadelphia Grand Opera company for three seasons.

A success in opera, she soon was in demand for concerts and oratorios. Leopold Stokowski engaged her for various appearances with the Philadelphia orchestra.

In the years that have followed she has been prominent in concert, opera, and radio work. Outstanding were six concerts under Toscanini with the New York Philharmonic orchestra, six concerts under Stokowski with the Philadelphia orchestra, successful appearances in London and on the continent, in the Hollywood bowl and at various music festivals throughout the country.

Symphony Is Subject of Club Meeting

A PAPER on "The Symphony of the Classic Period" was presented by Mrs. Paul Gilbert at the meeting of the Cadence club Monday afternoon at her home on E. Hancock street. She traced the development of the full symphony as it evolved from the string quartet and illustrated her paper with phonographic recordings of symphonies by Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven. Mrs. Clarence Deakins reported on current events in music.

Plans for next year's program were discussed at the business session, and it was decided to study two composers, Wagner and Debussy, in detail.

The club's next meeting, scheduled for March 28, will be held at the Lawrence Conservatory of Music. Mrs. John Fanslow will discuss the concerto, and Mrs. Irving Kersten and Mrs. Harold Heller will play a 2-piano concerto.

Fortnightly club will have a luncheon Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. G. Wheeler, 810 E. College avenue. Assisting Mrs. Wheeler as hostess will be Mrs. Joseph Benton, Mrs. H. A. Rothchild, Mrs. George Nixon, Mrs. W. D. Schlafert and Miss Alice Diederich. After the luncheon Mrs. Elmer Root will review "The Flowering of New England," by Van Wyck Brooks.

Mrs. Walter Grossman entertained the Justusw Bridge club Monday night at her home on N. Richmond street. Prizes at cards were won by Mrs. Howard Boulby, Miss Helen Briesse and Mrs. Harvey Gyl. Miss Wilhelmine Meyer was a guest. In two weeks Miss Briesse will entertain the club at her home on E. Eldorado street.

Miss Annette Buchanan read from "Alluring Wisconsin," by Holmes, at the meeting of the Novel-History club Monday night at the home of Miss Aimee Baker, N. Rankin street. She will continue the reading when the club meets next Monday night at her home on E. College avenue.

Clio club heard Mrs. Herbert L. Davis read the currently popular play, "I'd Rather Be Right," by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, at its meeting Monday night at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Towle, 845 E. Washington street. Mrs. F. C. Hyde, 815 E. Washington street, will be hostess to the club on Monday night, at which time Miss Carrie Morgan will read from the biography "Madam Curie."

Alpha Chi Omega Has Two New Patronesses

Alpha Chi Omega sorority has acquired two new patronesses, Mrs. Raymond Peterson and Mrs. William Buchanan, it was announced at a meeting of the alumnae club Monday night at the home of Miss Marcella Buesing, 1209 N. Morrison street. After the business session the Appleton Alumnae club of the sorority was entertained by the alumnae at a card party, honors at contract bridge going to Mrs. Harold Griffith and Miss Ruth Parkinson and at auction to Mrs. Frank Weinkauff. Mrs. J. W. Robson will be hostess at the alumnae group's next meeting at her home in Alton court. New officers will be elected at that time. Miss Anna Tarr and Miss Ruth Parkinson are on the nominating committee.

McKinley School Eighth Graders Rehearse Plays

Two plays are being rehearsed by pupils of the eighth grade at McKinley Junior High school and will be presented during a general assembly gathering this month. Titles of the plays are "Not Quite Such a Goose" and "At the Railroad Station." Miss Ruth Parkinson is directing both casts.

Fr. Gerard Lectures on Sacraments

THE purpose of the church is the establishment of the Kingdom of God in the world, therefore the sanctification of man and the salvation of souls, the Rev. Father Gerard, O. M. Cap., stated in his talk on "The Sacramental Action of the Church" last night at St. Joseph's hall under the auspices of the Catholic Information committee of Father Fitzmaurice council, Knights of Columbus.

"Man is not called to a mere natural end, to the development of his natural powers and aptitudes, but beyond this to reach a supernatural elevation of his being which entirely surpasses all created aptitudes and powers, to worship with God, to participation in the divine life itself," he said.

The sacrament of marriage is essentially a creature of grace, the speaker went on, and it is the function of Christ and of Christianity to bring the grace of God to sense-bound man under the veil of visible and evident signs. He explained that grace comes chiefly and ordinarily through the medium of the sacraments.

Father Gerard went on to say that the seven sacraments embrace the whole of human life, sanctifying all its heights and depths, and explained briefly the sacraments of baptism, confirmation, penance, Holy Eucharist, extreme unction, Holy Orders and matrimony.

Head of Field Museum Is Club Speaker

C. GREGG, director of the field museum of natural history in Chicago, spoke to the Ushers club of First Congregational church at a meeting Sunday night at the home of Elmer H. Jennings, 1124 E. North street. Mr. Gregg spoke of the field museum and told of expeditions made to acquire material for the institution, and he showed a number of specimens which he brought with him. About 30 men attended the meeting.

Zion Lutheran Mission society will meet at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the parish school auditorium. Mrs. Amanda Rosberg will be in charge of the prize.

"Seek Peace and Pursue It" is the theme for devotions to be led by Mrs. E. W. Turney at the meeting of Circle Esther of First Baptist church, which will be held at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. A. Downey, 1616 N. Morrison street. Plans will be completed for a bake sale to be held next Tuesday after the Women's Union meeting at the church. The last meeting of the circle will be April 20.

A stewardship playlet was presented by five members of the Missionary Study group of St. John Evangelical and Reformed church Monday night at the home of Mrs. Robert Boldt, 1613 W. Lawrence street. Those taking part were Mrs. Boldt, Mrs. Herbert Baer, Mrs. Peter Bast, Mrs. Herman Bardenhagen and Mrs. Nora Krueger. Miss Tillie Jahn led devotions. The next meeting will be April 20 with Miss Evelyn Brandt as hostess.

The meeting of Circle 1 of First Congregational church which was to have been held today at the home of Mrs. John B. Hanna has been postponed out of deference to Mr. Hanna whose father is being buried today in the east.

Mrs. August Rademacher, 919 N. Harriman street, entertained the weekly mission study class of Trinity English Lutheran church Monday afternoon at her home. Mrs. J. O. Koppin read from the study book, "Highland Heritage," and week of prayer topics were presented by Mrs. G. E. Tesch, Mrs. J. Kromer and Mrs. John Wagner, Jr. Next Monday the class will meet with Mrs. L. Halversaat, N. Mason street.

Intermedial Luther League of Trinity English Lutheran church will hold a short business meeting at 7 o'clock Wednesday night at the church preceding the Lenten devotions.

Garden Club Gets Data on New Seeds

Waupaca Organization Has Meeting at Phil Darling Residence

Waupaca—Miss Merte Rasmussen, hostess, was guest of the Waupaca Garden club Monday afternoon, meeting with the executive committee at a 1 o'clock luncheon at Anne of Green Gables and at 3 o'clock going to the home of Mrs. Phil Darling where the regular meeting was held.

Attending the luncheon where the Mesdames Charles Bremen, O. F. Peterson, O. E. Hanson, R. J. Kirby, A. M. Christofferson, Carroll Cristy, James Carew and Edwina Hart.

Mrs. A. J. Hancock led a discussion of the new seeds and plants for trial, telling of peaches that grow on vines; lemon cucumbers, shaped like lemons; tomatoes that are white as eggshells, with white skin and white flesh; round, massive radishes weighing fifty pounds, better liked by hens than by humans; nasturtiums with forty or fifty petals; blood-red asters; five-inch marigolds; ferns that perpetually shake. These and other new plants are being offered in the new seed catalogs. Mrs. Hancock reported.

Miss Rasmussen continued the discussion opened by Mrs. Hancock, saying that there are not many new plants—just improvements of the old; and that most of our so-called new plants are the old ones coming back.

The club voted to invite the Wisconsin Federation of Garden Clubs to hold its summer meeting in this city and it is expected that a week-end will be planned for that purpose, to give guests to the convention further opportunity to enjoy the recreational possibilities of the Chain O'Lakes.

The next meeting will be held April 11 at the home of Mrs. A. Fred Behnke. At that time Mrs. O. E. Hanson will talk of raising vegetables; Mrs. Willy Holmes of the new varieties of vegetables; and Mrs. Victoria Cartwright of gladioluses.

Petition Asks Court To Appraise Property

Hearing of a petition made by the county highway committee for an appraisal of the Eva L. Van Patten property at Shiocton to be used as a right-of-way will take place in county court of Judge Fred V. Heinemann Wednesday.

The property is one of the rights-of-way, most of which already have been secured by the county highway committee for the state highway department, for a new $85,000 bridge across the Wolf river. The bridge will replace the present structure which figured in the accidental death of a family of seven persons on March 14, 1937. Cost of the new bridge will be borne jointly by the state and federal governments.

The former home of the late Eben E. Rexford, who wrote "Silver Thimble and the Gold" stands on the Van Patten property.

HERE'S A SCENE FROM 'THE LUCK OF THE IRISH'

While little Barbara Harrington is welcomed home after being kidnapped, Henri, her father's chauffeur is being taken into custody by Jacob Augenblick in this scene from the comedy-drama, "The Luck of the Irish," which will be presented by St. Mary parish at 8:15 Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Columbia hall, Barbara Franzke, 111 W. Packard street, and the part of Augenblick is played by Thomas Planner, 317 S. Elm street. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Irish Play Will Feature St. Patrick's Day Program

A GENUINE Irish atmosphere will dominate the St. Patrick's day program which will be presented at 8:15 Wednesday and Thursday evenings at Columbia hall by St. Mary parish. Not only will there be a three act comedy-drama entitled "The Luck of the Irish" under the direction of the Rev. Lambert Scanlan, assistant pastor of the church, but between acts there will be Irish songs by eight men known as the St. Patrick's Day Singers and tap dances and musical selections by children of St. Mary school. Appleton Civic symphony under the direction of Milton A. Herberg will provide music also.

The cast of characters for the play is as follows: Barbara Harrington, Barbara Franzke; Constance Harrington, Helen Van Ryzin; Van Tassie MacMurrough, Francis T. Rooney; Dermot O'Toole, J. M. Van Rooy; Nora Mullen, Beatrice O'Connor; Henri, John Kohl; Jacob Augenblick, Thomas Planner; Ellen Augenblick, Nora Mae Hobbs; Mademoiselle, Mary O'Connor.

The St. Patrick's Day Singers include Lester Balliet, Louis H. Carroll, Walter Fountain, Eugene Fountain, James L. Hobbs, William P. Hobbs, Harold Williams and James F. Hobbs. Miss Patricia Ryan will play the accompaniment. The group will sing "Killarney," "Come Back to Erin," "Somewhere in Ireland," and "Shenanigans," also "Dar Little Shamrock," "Three Leaves of Shamrock," "The Wearing of the Green" and "Along the Rocky Road to Dublin."

The specialty numbers by the school children will include tap dances by Mary Theresa Heenan, Marge and Joan Foxgrover, La Verne Le Moine, Betty Lally, and Joan Long, an Irish jig by Mary Ellen McGregor, Hawaiian guitar selections by Robert Bauernfeind and a piano solo by Carla Mae Schommer.

Appleton to Entertain Music Clubs

THE Wisconsin Federation of Music Clubs will hold its annual state convention in Appleton on May 12 and 13, with delegates from all music clubs of the state in attendance. Appleton's two federated music clubs, the Wednesday Musicals, of which Mrs. Mildred Boettcher is president, and the MacDowell Male chorus, whose president is J. S. Wells, will act as hosts to the convention.

A dinner for all state officers and the local committees at 6:30 Wednesday evening, May 11, at the Conway hotel will open the convention and a concert Friday evening at Lawrence Memorial chapel will close the 2-day meeting. Aside from the regular business, there will be voice, piano and organ clinics and several programs of choral and instrumental music by federated groups from many cities in Wisconsin.

Both the meetings and the concerts will be open to the public. Mrs. Vincent Hillies Ober, Norfolk, Va., national president of the Federated Music Clubs, will attend the convention and will speak at the annual banquet Thursday evening, May 12, at the Conway hotel. Mrs. E. C. Thompson, Madison, president of the state federation, will preside at all meetings.

On the convention committee are J. S. Wells, A. A. Glockin, Mrs. Mildred Boettcher, Mrs. Fred Bepko, George Tomlinson and O. R. Tank. Appleton: Mrs. G. F. Rassweiler, Beloit; and Mrs. Thompson, the state president.

About Skat and Skat Players

BY FRANK LAUS

Secretary Twin City Skat League The Twin City Skat league will hold the first of its series of monthly tournaments next Sunday afternoon at the Eagles club rooms, Neenah. Preparations are being made for a large attendance.

A large number of Twin City men attended the state tournament at Milwaukee on March 6. At least two of them placed among the winners, Lawrence Bourgmans with a grand over with three jacks for 792 points and William Hackstock with 680 points and 19 games.

An estimate of skat clubs revealed that there are about 4,200 players in the territory covered by the Post-Crescent.

Plans are being made to open a skat school in the Twin Cities by a request of a number of old and new lovers of the game.

Walter J. Zame, internationally known authority of the game, is scheduled to appear in the Twin Cities in the near future.

This week's tip—if you have one good jack with three of each of three suits, bid 12. You have 22 chances to 20 to find two diamonds in the skat to be overbid.

Any rule or question will be answered by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Frank Laus, 9 High street, Menasha, Wis.

Hold Dress Rehearsal for Masque and Book Club Play

H. GLEISNER cracked a 245 game and H. DEEG smashed a 640 series to top klegers in the Zion Big Ten Bowling league last week at the Zion Lutheran alleys. Iowa hit a 1,035 and Purdue rolled a 2,910 total to pace teams.

Illinois won three games from Michigan to remain in first place in the league. P. Refke shot a 202 game and 577 series to lead the winners while E. Stecker rolled a 217 game and 568 total and paced Michigan.

Three games were won by Purdue over Northwestern. Deeg's 225 game and 640 total was tops for Purdue and W. Neumann smashed a 209 game and 597 series to head Northwestern.

Minnesota won two games from Chicago. M. Buske cracked a 206 game and 574 series and led Minnesota while A. Ecker rolled a 597 series to head Chicago. B. Ecker rolled a 220 game for Chicago.

Ohio tripped Wisconsin in two out of three games. E. Pirner rolled a 220 game and 574 series and led Ohio while S. Peotter rolled a 200 game and 558 series to lead Wisconsin.

Two games were won by Iowa over Indiana. H. Gleisner cracked a 245 game and 630 series and paced the losers while P. Murphy rolled a 225 game and led Indiana.

"Italian Rebel" On Grunt Program

Joe Dorsetti Usually Needs Police Escort After Bout

Menasha—Joe Dorsetti, billed as the "Italian rebel," will be back in the wind-up bout of the wrestling show at S. A. Cook armory Wednesday, with sideburns longer than ever. There is a possibility that Dorsetti, instead of being behind the tail bar of some town, if he continues his recent record. He appeared at Racine Thursday night and finished with a police escort; at Milwaukee five bluecoats showed him to the dressing room.

Tangling with Joe will be Duke Ruppenthal, cast in the unusual role of the hero. The Duke is an adept performer and usually fills the villain role himself. The two should provide plenty of action and entertainment in the two out of three fall, one hour time limit contest.

Stanley Pesek, the popular Polish grapple who was recently named state middleweight champion by the Tolle-Strathota combination, will continue in his hero role. He meets "Speedy" Frank Douglas, the Texas Wildcat in the semi-windup bout.

Speedy has the knack of raising the crowd's ire but he is a capable wrestler and an excellent exhibitionist. Frank and Pesek will also meet in two out of three falls with another time limit.

The opening bout will see the return of Rowdy Pagan of Kimberly and Johnny Principi of New York. Both are known to local fans and a good opening match is expected in the one fall, 30 minute time limit bout is expected.

As an added attraction Ralph Becker will play a return engagement with his $1,000 piano accompaniment between falls. The first bout will not be started until religious services are over Wednesday evening. Reservations may be made by calling 2619.

Hogan and Goggins Lead Pro Golfers

Miami, Fla. —(7)— Ben Hogan and Willie Goggin, displaying a fine disregard for reputations in the first two rounds of the $4,000 international four-ball golf tournament, bucked the semifinals today.

Corbett-Apostoli Verdict Approved in Writers' Poll

BY EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK—(7)— Seems that decision in the Young Corbett-Apostoli match was so sour after all. Ed Orman, sports editor of the Fresno (Cal.) Bee, polled seven sports writers at the ringside and only one of them thought Apostoli "was robbed." So off goes your hat to Corbett, who is one of the real marvels of the boxing game.

He had more than 150 fights, but sports no scars, no cauliflower ears or battered-up features. Only guys to lick him were Jimmy McManis, Sammy Baker, Bill Conz, Dominick, McCarthy, and Lou Brouillard. Five defeats in 17 years of campaigning—where can you tie that?

Gus Dorais, smart coach at U. of Detroit, will conduct a coaching school at Erie, Pa., late in June. . . . Many members of the Frank Patrick, two Pitt grid stars, are barmaking with an independent basketball team. . . . Izzy Klein, who formerly trained him, predicts Barney Ross will score an early victory over Henry Armstrong. . . . "Found for pound, he is the best fighter in the country" says Izzy who has been around long enough to know whereof he speaks. . . . The University of North Carolina shortly will inherit a basketball star (Thaxter Sain of Belwood) who is married and the proud popper of two kids although he won't graduate from high school until May. . . . Thaxter must have got what you call an early start.

When he fought and licked Tommy Farr the other night, Maxie Baer didn't know his daddy had been in a hospital for two weeks. . . . That's the reason Maxie Baer didn't know his daddy had been in a hospital for two weeks. . . . Basketball men say it is easier to jump from the collieth to the pro ranks from the Midwest than from the East. . . . Easiest fighter to listen to on the radio is Fred Apos, the middleweight, from San Francisco. . . . Sub Alton California coach, visited the Minnesota campus recently and there is talk the two schools will be meeting at football any year now.

Marvin Franklin, Vanderbilt's new football captain, who is the son of a Methodist preacher in Birmingham, Ala., succeeds Carl Hinkle who (besides being an all-America on the AP team) is the son of a Methodist preacher in Nashville. . . . Two guys named Max-Max Roesch, 21-year-old heavy-weight, and Max Lonz, 20-year-old middleweight, are putting Dallas back on the fistic map.

Amel Hoffman was so sure of Max Baer against Farr he bet $5,000 on Max at 2 to 1—and cleaned up. . . . don't shed any tears for poor old Alabama next season. . . . Frank Thomas has six-count 'em—six 200 pounders to plug the gaps graduations left. . . .

Another thing which prevents the amateur from accomplishing much within a reasonable distance of his city, town or village, is the scarcity of birds. If he wants to have his dog trained and experienced properly, unless he has the time every day to travel as far as the haunts of the question, the death stares almost every dog in the face that attempts to cross a public highway. . . .

Seemingly many drivers of cars think they are obliged to speed up all of the time and the matter of killing a dog is of no consequence. . . .

At the present time professional trainers are very convenient. Their charges are moderate, and because they have their training quarters usually where game is fairly abundant, they can give dogs experience such as is denied the average amateur, though many amateurs, when all the right conditions are at their beckoning, are just as capable as professionals.

Years ago many public trainers were unjustly charged with many crimes which they never committed. When a dog died in their hands—and thousands of dogs die annually in the hands of the most expert amateurs despite the care they give them—immediately the pro was accused of disposing of these dogs to hunters for a fabulous price and reporting falsely that they had succumbed to some disease. The truth of the matter was that without the transfer of registration papers being signed by the owners the best dog in the world would not bring more than a few dollars. There never was and is not now, the slightest inducement, or temptation for a professional trainer to dispose of a dog illegally.

Reputation Damaged
A bad thing once happened when a dog died in the hands of a pro, without the slightest proof the owner accused the trainer of selling it to someone else, and told everybody he knew that this was fact. Later when he discovered his error to a certainty, he wrote an apologetic letter to the trainer. But it was too late. The damage to the trainer's reputation was now irrefragable. The word of his dishonesty had sided into too many ears to the letter be of any avail.

Present day trainers usually are exceedingly competent. In one way they save dog owners a lot of money. For a small fee they will try out the dog before deciding to train it and positively tell the owner whether it is a prospect which will ever be worth the training charges. This is a service which owners ought to appreciate, because thousands of them annually waste the time of amateurs, since they are not worth the time which they expend upon them.

The modern training kennel of the professional is clean and in an environment close to game. Dogs are fed well—in fact better than years before—because cheap electric refrigerators make it possible for them to buy inexpensive meat at all times for their charges, and the commercially prepared foods which are so cheap and good, that in every way they surpass anything which the trainer years ago could purchase and prepare.

There is this much to say in behalf of modern trainers when a dog gets sick when in their kennels. They know dog diseases far better than the average amateur and can give a sick dog better care and treatment in every way than he could. Facts cannot be well disputed, especially the one that more dogs succumb to disease in the hands of owners at home than they do while with public trainers.

PRO TRAINERS
By Ozark Ripley
MODERNITY has forced the M of birds dogs to consider professional trainers as essential. They have to have them to break and develop their field trial and shooting dogs, as well as condition experienced dogs for the shooting season. Old conditions no longer prevail. Near large cities there are no longer available grounds for the amateur to train his dogs. Conditioning near a city is almost impossible. The question of the death stares almost every dog in the face that attempts to cross a public highway. . . .

St. Joe Eagles Defeat Kaukauna

Score 21-12 Conference Win; Meet Chuters Wednesday

The St. Joseph Golden Eagles basketball team defeated St. Mary of Kaukauna, 21 to 12, in a game played yesterday at the Kaukauna High school gymnasium in Catholic Boy conference competition.

St. Joseph was lost on the big floor but handled the ball better and had a better eye for the hoop to win. It dropped 10 baskets in 37 shots while St. Mary made 6 in 31 tries. Ranquette starred for the losers while Ralph Gage stole honors for the Eagles with five baskets in eleven attempts.

Wednesday evening St. Joseph will meet the Junior Dutchmen of Little Chute, undefeated leader in the conference. The Chuters need only one win to assure them of the title. St. Joseph is in second place with 13 victories against two defeats. Early in the season St. John won by a 14 to 6 score.

Training Camp Briefs

By the Associated Press
VALON CALIF.—Manager Chalton Grimm, of the Chicago Cubs, is slated to open training camp showing of Pitcher Curt Davis, one of the Cubs' disappointments last season. Davis cut loose against the hitters yesterday with mid-season speed.

Pasadena, Calif.—One of those training camp shifts used to bring holdouts into line, is contemplated by Manager Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox. Dykes says he may try to make a first baseman out of outfielder Rip Radcliff. You guessed it. Zeke Bonura, the regular first sacker, is a hold-out, the only one since Pitcher Merritt (Sugar) Cain signed yesterday.

New Orleans—Bob Feller, Cleveland's wonder boy, will make his first appearance in action Thursday against the New Orleans Pelicans, preparatory to a starting berth when the Indians meet the New York Giants here Sunday.

Baton Rouge, La.—Bill Terry has written his regular second baseman, Burgess Whitehead to report to the New York Giants whenever he feels like it. Whitehead is eager to join the team and Terry said, "if it would make him feel any better to sit around with us, he can come on whenever he wishes." Whitehead is recovering from an appendectomy.

Clearwater, Fla.—Dolph Camilli, the first baseman the Brooklyn Dodgers recently acquired from the Phillies, has wired Larry MacPhail, general manager of the club, for transportation to camp from his home in California. Camilli asks about $17,500 against a bid of $15,000 and will be fined $50 a day for every day he misses unless he reports "pretty soon," says MacPhail.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Colonel Jacob Ruppert, the New York Yankees' owner, repeats with emphasis that he has made his last offer to holdout Joe DiMaggio. Ruppert will not invite DiMaggio to St. Petersburg to talk things over, neither will he put a time limit on the outfielder's accepting terms.

Women Bowlers Name Officers

Mrs. Anna Muench, Neenah, Again Elected Sergeant at Arms

Oshkosh —(7)— The Marinette-Menominee Women's Bowling association yesterday was awarded the 1937 tournament of the Wisconsin State Women's Bowling association, now holding its annual competition here.

Mrs. Eve Carlson was elected president. The association also added a Class D to the five-man competition, and a Class C to the doubles and singles events, for next year.

Others named with Mrs. Carlson were: Mrs. Molly Puppke, Oshkosh, re-elected vice president; Mrs. Gene Kneppath, Milwaukee, re-elected secretary; Mrs. Florence Dunlap, Marinette, treasurer; Mrs. Anna Muench, Neenah, re-elected sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Ray Basing, Oshkosh, and Mrs. Nora Kay, Janesville, directors for three years.

Mrs. Marian Brister, Kenosha, was elected delegate to the Women's International Bowling Congress at Cincinnati in April.

Armstrong Favored Over Baby Arizmendi

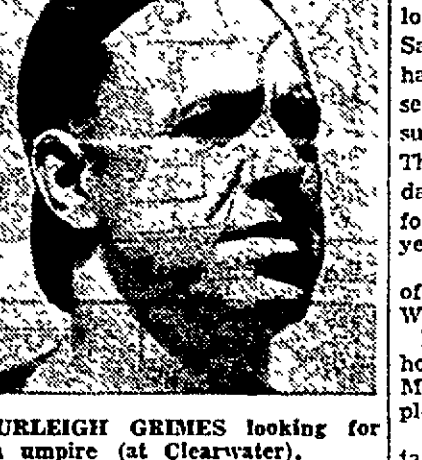

Los Angeles —(7)— Featherweight Champion Henry Armstrong, the best little fighting machine in the world, collides tonight with Baby Arizmendi, who has outpointed him in two of their three bouts.

Tonight's non-title meeting is scheduled for 10 rounds at Olympic Auditorium. A turnout throng of 10,400 is expected to pay $15,000 to see it.

Few, if any, figured Arizmendi, 25-year-old battle scarred ring veteran, would repeat the decision he won over Armstrong at Mexico City before he lost to him here in 1936.

What You'd See in Camp:

Girl Scouts Have Anniversary Fete At Clintonville

About 80 Persons Present At Program Held in City Hall

Clintonville — About eighty persons attended the girl scout anniversary party Saturday afternoon at the city hall. This number included present and former members of the girl scout troops, their mothers, leaders and troop-committeewomen.

The program opened with the presentation of the flag and the singing of The Star Spangled Banner. Irene Morris and Doris Mae Schmidt gave the scout sign, salute and scout laws, after which songs were sung by the group.

A history of the girl scout movement was given by Miss Louise Kant, who has been a leader of the local troops for the last six years and has been active in the scout program. She traced girl scouting from its beginning 26 years ago to the present time.

The first troop was organized March 12, 1912, at Savannah, Ga., after which the movement spread over the entire United States and some foreign countries. Mrs. Ralph Laney, leader of one of the local troops, talked on "What Scouting Means to the Girls" and explained what is done at girl scout meetings. Games were played by the youngsters and the afternoon closed with the serving of ice-cream and cake by the committee-women and members of the Junior Woman's club.

A movement is now underway to reorganize the girl scout troops in this city. About thirty-five girls have registered for the ensuing year but it is expected that this number will be increased to 50 as many of those interested in joining could not be present at the meeting Saturday. The troops will again be sponsored by the Junior Woman's Club, which took over the project from the Clintonville Woman's club.

A meeting was held Monday afternoon at the Finney library by the newly appointed groups in charge of the girl scout program in Clintonville. The girl scout council included Mrs. C. R. Kant, Mrs. Roy Martin, Mrs. J. H. Stein, Mrs. George McCauley, the Misses Louise and Antoinette Kant. Members of the troop committees are: No. 1, Mrs. Max Stieg, Mrs. Albert Fritz, Mrs. Howard Bovee and Mrs. Joseph Moser; No. 2, Mrs. Herbert Bovee, Mrs. Jack Aufreiter, Mrs. T. C. Dix and Mrs. F. D. Sexton.

Central Circle of the Congregational Dorcas society, will meet Wednesday afternoon at the church parlors instead of at the home of Mrs. Rulsch, as previously announced.

Taken to Hospital

Harry Lindow, 21, of Belle Plaine was admitted Sunday to the Clintonville Community hospital for treatment following a motorcycle accident in which he suffered a brain concussion and severe laceration.

Otto Wagner, 79, of Embarrass, is receiving medical treatment at the local hospital. Mrs. Harvey Steenbeck and infant son left the hospital Sunday for their home on route 3.

Mrs. Alvin Kauko was admitted to the Clintonville hospital Monday for medical care. A daughter was born March 6 to Mr. and Mrs. Howard Beggs of this city.

A son was born Sunday to Mr. and Mrs. George Meyer at their home in this city. A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Lester Fields Monday morning at their home east of Clintonville.

John Buehrens, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Buehrens and children spent Sunday at Dorchester with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Buehrens. Sr. They also visited Mrs. Herbert Buehrens and baby at the Madison hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wolfe of Appleton were weekend guests at the home of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Baur, in this city. Walter A. Olen, president and general manager of the Four Wheel Drive Auto company talked to Rotarians Monday about the recent listing of FWD stock on the Chicago Stock Exchange. Mr. Olen explained the steps taken preparatory to listing the stock and the advantages to be derived from the action.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY BY ALAN LEHAY

Chapter 44 In My Arms

IT WAS hard for me to get any thing like a complete report from the Tenyalang pangiran in command. The Tenyalang prau had been sent not by the White Rajah but by the White Rance. The White Rance was aboard the Linkang. The Tenyalang which had come to the Tomarup had been aboard the Linkang too, to guard the White Rance—but the Rance had sent most of them to me. The pangiran though there were very few Tenyalang at Balingong town, the White Rajah had sent word to most of them to defend their rice at all costs. Then the Malays and 1,000 hill tribesmen unfriendly to the White Rajah had attacked. Balingong had fallen—part of it had been burned. The pangiran thought that the White Rajah's palace still stood.

EMPIRE FOR A LADY

The Rajah still held his stockade when only a few men. There were reports that some of his men, especially the Tanyalang, went on fighting after they were dead. At night headless warriors stalked through the villages, destroying my enemies.

The pangiran admitted that he had not believed this; but his eyes popped when he saw the piles of heads, and he said he was now ready to believe. In the Siderong, too, I was being called the Tuan Darah. Rentong had proclaimed that the Tuan Darah was dead. Many believed this. Almost all believed that the White Rajah, too, would soon be dead.

That was about all the pangiran had to say that was intelligible. There was a good deal more about spirits of several kinds that were infesting the jungle around Balingong; a number of miracles were said to have happened, of one sort or another, and I paid no attention to this. But there were also two or three incidents which sounded as if they might have happened, and which I did not understand.

A great gun, which, to judge by the pangiran's description, could only have come from my own mountings in Clyde's stockade, had been brought to the beach, and for some hours had fired upon the Linkang and the Avon, until the Tanyalang had captured it and rolled it into the sea. This was a peculiar story, because the pangiran should have known a Malay Lantaka when he saw one, and could hardly have confused one with a long sword.

Her Beautiful Face
Another odd report was about a prau that had drifted down the Siderong containing nothing but the headless body of a white man, and a small ivory god sitting alone upon a thwart, one hand outstretched. (I thought of the Buddha that van der Dongen had given Clyde.) They had not shown these things to the White Rajah. They had let the prau alone because of the ivory god. It had made its way to the sea—probably, the pangiran suggested, driven by unseen paddles. They did not know what became of it.

Nothing further that the pangiran said came any nearer telling me what I had to know. I spread the relatively fresh Tanyalang paddlers through the prau, putting the best in my own fast bank to set a smoky pace; and we went racing into open sea, headed for Balingong. In the next 19 hours we covered 140 miles. It was with an unspeakable relief that I saw that both the Linkang and the Avon were still afloat, and in white hands.

Once we were far enough into the pass to open Balingong Bay we uncorked everything we had saved, in a final drive to reach the Linkang before we could be cut off. A few fresh paddlers in their fast bankings could have made a nasty mess of us, in spite of our Tanyalang.

So they brought me around the blunt bow of the Linkang, and I was looking upward into the pinched, white face whose dark eyes stared at me from over-side. I remember thinking then, "She will look that way when she is old. When she is very old, this face will be Christine's. And it will still be the most beautiful face in the world." But something tore at my throat, seeing it so pale and hollowed now.

They got me safe on the Linkang's deck; then Christine was in my arms, clinging to this score-crow out of the Tomarrup, this queer, wracked ghost the currents had brought back to her out of the November monsoons.

We were trying to talk to each other, but neither one of us could get out anything coherent, so that our words made a crazy confused whispering that not even ourselves understood. While I was in the Tomarrup, far away, had seemed very close to me; but now, in my arms, she at first seemed a stranger, so much was she changed. Our breathless voices stumbled presently to find the same word—Balingong—Balingong—Balingong. "Christine," I got out at last. "Is she alive?"

Her voice burst out hysterically. "I don't know! It's three days! I haven't heard from him since—since—"

Then suddenly her face was pressed hard against my chest, and she was crying as if her broken heart could never be put together again.

Infinitely Precious
To Christine tears came hard; God knows I had seen enough evidence that this was so. I had seen times in her eyes perhaps three times every time under my tremendous stress. So now it was a strange and pitiful thing to see the tears flow so heavily that they wet her lips, and her mouth twisted out of control, and to feel her whole body shaken as if she were being wrenched apart. What age-long dry-eyed torments she must have been through, to break her so, no body is ever going to know!

Within my hands she was terribly thin, and a blue tracing of veins showed at her temples; I knew that the fever must have been at her again. But she was alive and on her feet, and that was all in the world I cared about during those first moments while I found her in actual, tangible reality again. I knew that there were tears running down my own face, too, and dropping into the dark softness of her hair.

Blair, so gaunt and hollow-eyed that I hardly recognized him, was standing a little way behind her, and he kept trying to say something. I presently became aware of this, and raised my eyes to him, whereupon he suddenly failed and turned away. A circle of Tanyalang, who were standing around gazing, also drew away, so that we were left alone. We stood in silence while my shaking hands held her like the infinitely fragile, infinitely precious thing she was to me.

I couldn't believe that she would not at any moment vanish away into mist, or that something more real and terrible was not going to happen to her, something that I could not protect her from or prevent.

I tried to say something, but no words would come. She had on those same clothes she had worn aboard that first time she ever came to the Linkang. And while long tremors of weeping shook her body, I kept remembering a girl in the same slacks and this same silk shirt, with the Tanyalang jimat thonged against her wrist. All that had been ages ago, on the other side of hell. And now this same girl was in my arms, and the ship was the same and everything else was changed.

After a long time she was able to speak a little, her voice very small and unsteady. She raised one hand, and her fingers tremulously touched my face.

"It's you. It's really you. In long sticky whiskers. But you. Why, you're hurt—they hurt you!"

"No, they didn't. I'm all right." "Are you sure? Are you really sure?"

"Of course. It's you I want to know about. You've been in my mind every minute of every night, and every day."

Without moving her cheek from my chest she turned her face upward, and looked at me; and she smiled. I bent and kissed her, and through her lips I could feel the long shudders that still went over her; but they were dying away.

She said, "They told me you were dead. For a week—no, it's years and years—I've had to know" that you weren't in the world, any place, any more."

She drew a long, shaky breath; but after that she relaxed. She rested full length against me, a dead weight, perfectly still. It was as if she had not been able to rest for a long time, until now.

HOLLYWOOD LIGHTS ACTION HAPPENINGS

BY ROBBIN COONS

Hollywood—No doubt about it, here's the style center of the world—all styles.

A block and a half off the boulevard there opened the other evening a new night club, Cuban in theme and cuisine, rather steep as to tariff, excellent as to music—La Conga.

Hollywood, meaning the movie crowd, is invariably turning out for a new night club. If it's still turning out, some 60 days later, the club's a hit.

But Hollywood turns itself out, sartorially speaking, as it pleases. The feminine contingent of our party pointed this out with no sympathy at all for Hollywood's way of working and living, which of course dictates the dress of the lady style-setters.

"It's just funny, that's all," one of them said. "Most pieces evening dress is evening dress, but here—well, look around."

Just Off The Air
The look-around was fruitful. The feminine contingent agreed that Alice Faye over there with Tony Martin, was "smart" in that suit affair and hat with long shawl-like veil. Also that Gracie Allen, suited and hatted, was "tres chic and cute" dancing with George Burns.

"What's wrong with that?" argued counsel for the defense. "Those people just got through airing tonight—what would they get a chance to slip into something loose if they wanted to?"

"Nothing's wrong—only look around some more. Just what is evening dress in this town?"

The ensuing survey revealed: the Brewster twins in long flowing white; one girl in a colorful turban; another unknown in bright tweeds ("Well, she's been to Santa Anita, came right on here"); a little brunette in a street suit, rumbaing nicely; another beauty in filmy white, carrying a big cherry-pink feather fan; a bejeweled and glittering Sophie Tucker; Mrs. Buck Jones and daughter Maxine in "longs"; another tweedy horse devotee; a diamonded dowager; Claire Dodd in long black with eye-catching tall black hat, fancied with colored ribbons, and so on.

Dietrich Enters
Interest in assorted costumes took another form when Marlene Dietrich swept in, making her customary entrance. She was done up in black with a high hat, strangely like Claire Dodd's, only prickly with feathers instead of ribboned. The feminine contingent gaped with delightful anticipation: what would Dietrich do when she saw Dodd?

But that question was never resolved, because Dietrich did not see Dodd. There was a strong suspicion that Dietrich sees only what she chooses. The most beautifully languorous mask in town cracked

Wife of Lawrence Professor Wins $1,000 For Manuscript on Scientific Subject

Mrs. William Paul Gilbert, wife of the assistant professor of physics at Lawrence college, has received the first prize award of $1,000 given by Williams and Wilkins, Baltimore publishers, for the best manuscript on a scientific subject of general interest. Her manuscript, entitled "Biography of the Unborn," describes the successive stages of the human embryo in a form said to be unequalled in popular science.

Receiving the class of 1924 scholarship at McKinley High school, Canton, Ohio, Mrs. Gilbert attended Oberlin college, where she took her first degree in 1930. She then taught at Wellesley, receiving her M.A. degree there in 1932. She and Dr. Gilbert, whom she met at Oberlin, both took their doctor of philosophy degrees during the same week at Cornell.

The competition in which Mrs. Gilbert won first prize brought 61 manuscripts, many from experts in their fields. Judges were Lyman Bryson, professor of education, Teachers college, Columbia university; Joseph Wheeler, chairman of the booklist committee of the American Association for the Advancement of Science; David Dietz, science editor of the Scripps-Hawson New York book critic.

Mrs. Gilbert, who is not yet 30, has one child. She and her husband came to Appleton last summer and are making their home at 808 E. Hancock street.

into a smile on at least three occasions, otherwise was serenely waxen. It posed for all the photographers, departed almost immediately with its two male care-takers.

Somehow, La Conga was not the same thereafter. The music got hotter, the crowd got gayer, a Ritz or two couldn't repress a "Belvoir Bist Du Schoen," and Scribbler Gene Towne table-visited in his customary unquiet manner. But what is life, after all, when Dietrich has gone from it?

Strangest current star-director combination is Norma Shearer and W. S. Van Dyke. Norma is for the try-and-try again system of movie-making—many, many "takes" until a scene is perfect. Van Dyke is a hurry-up director, accent on speed.

Card Party Is Planned
At Shiocton Parish Hall
Shiocton—An open card party in honor of St. Patrick's day will be sponsored by the women of St. Denis congregation at their parish hall Thursday evening beginning at 8:30. Schafkopf and snapper will be played and prizes will be awarded.

The caucus for the town of Bovina will be held Saturday afternoon at the town hall, beginning at 1:30.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bidwell and son Billy and daughters Marjorie and Dorothy and the Misses Mable and Ethel Bidwell of DePere were guests at the Edgar Peep home Sunday and also assisted Mrs. M. A. Bidwell, who is visiting at the Peep home in celebrating her birthday anniversary, which occurred Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Palmer, Mrs. By Palmer, and Mr. and Mrs. Phil Palmer were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schreweide at Waupaca Sunday. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. Verr Booth and son Rex, of Rhinelander, and Mr. and Mrs. Herb Palmer of Clintonville.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. McCally and Mrs. Phil Palmer visited at the R. J. Pingel home at Chilton over the weekend. The latter returned Sunday morning and the former were accompanied home Sunday evening.

WINS PRIZE

Out of 61 manuscripts on scientific subjects of general interest submitted in a recent competition sponsored by a Baltimore publishing house that of Mrs. William Paul Gilbert, above, wife of the assistant professor of physics at Lawrence college, won first prize. Her subject was "Biography of the Unborn."

Sportsmen Will Meet at Seymour

Hunters and Fishermen to Hear Address and See Motion Pictures

Seymour—Plans have been completed for the meeting of all hunters and fishermen in the community at 7:30 Wednesday evening at Odd Fellows hall.

Ralph C. Conway of the state conservation department will be the principal speaker of the evening. The conservation department also will show movies of "Game Birds of Many Nations" and "Deer and Vacation Land." The local committee is inviting all to be present regardless of whether or not you are a hunter or fisherman.

Union lent service will be held Wednesday evening, in the Seymour Evangelical church, with the Rev. H. P. Jordan of Lark as the guest speaker.

The Ladies Aid society of the Evangelical church will hold its regular meeting at the church next Wednesday afternoon beginning at 2:30. At 5 o'clock a public supper will be served.

The Ladies Auxiliary society of the Congregational church will meet Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ed Babbitt. Miss Doris Dean visited several days with friends in Manitowish this week.

Gertrude Gould Dies at Home Near Clintonville

Clintonville—Gertrude Elizabeth Gould, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Gould, died at 5:30 Sunday afternoon at their home three miles east of Clintonville on route 2. She had been seriously ill for several weeks.

Born Sept. 11, 1919, Gertrude Gould was a lifelong resident of the township of Matteson. She was a student at Clintonville High school, being a member of the senior class. Besides the parents, survivors are a brother Lloyd and a sister Jane, both at home.

Funeral services will be conducted at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon at the farm residence and at 2 o'clock at the Heuer Funeral Home in this city by the Rev. W. H. Wiese, pastor of the Methodist church. Burial will take place at Graceland cemetery.

Mrs. S. J. Tilleson left Saturday for Stratford, Ontario, Canada, being called by the death that morning of her sister, Mrs. Lorne Robertson, 50, who has been ill since October. Dr. and Mrs. Robertson have frequently visited at the Tilleson home in this city. Survivors are the widower, two sisters and two brothers, Mrs. Tilleson, Mrs. E. L. Knight of Hamilton, Ontario, J. Douglas Munro of Regina, Saskatchewan, and John A. Munro of Durham, Ontario. The deceased had spent her early life at Durham and had resided at Stratford since her marriage. Mrs. Tilleson returned home only a few weeks ago after spending about a month with her sister.

Brisk Advances Mark Trading in Chicago Wheat

Maximum Gains Reduced By Profit-Taking in Late Dealings

Chicago —(P)—Wheat scored 11 cents maximum advance here today, stimulated to a considerable degree by upturns of securities, but profit-taking caused late reactions. Some buying of wheat futures here was attributed to exporters and to milling interests. A late recovery in French francs also was construed as bullish relative to wheat.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 1 to 1 cent above yesterday's finish, May 84-1, July 83-1, corn 1-1 up, May 55-1, July 54, and oats unchanged to 1 advance.

GOLDWYN LOSES THIS ONE

Albert Hoffman, wealthy beverage manufacturer, explained that it was "Sam or Al and Al won" as he told his marriage to Mitzi Mayfair. Miss Mayfair had a screen offer from Samuel Goldwyn which was mentioning the romance. They are shown here as they honeymooned at Scranton, Pa.

New York —(P)—Stocks climbed into further recovery territory today with selected issues posting gains running to 2 points generally and a few much more.

The list was handicapped for a while in the first hour by profit selling. This was absorbed without difficulty and a leisurely advance got under way which held until around the close when top marks were reduced in some cases.

Heavy industrials including steels, rubbers, coppers, motors, aircrafts and mail orders were the most popular. Utilities were narrow, as were the majority of rails.

The ticker tape frequently idled, but the approximate volume of 700,000 shares topped Monday's turnover considerably.

S. Rubber preferred was one of the liveliest and sharpest share gainers. Others prominent on the forward move were U. S. Rubber common, Goodyear, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Crucible, Anaconda, Kennecott, American Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, Chrysler, General Motors, Boeing, Douglas Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, J. I. Case, International Harvester, Standard Oil of N. J., Du Pont, Westinghouse, General Electric, American Can, Union Carbide and Philip Morris.

Mines such as Dome, Homestake and McIntyre backed away.

Austrian Bonds Dip Sharply in New York

New York —(P)—Austrian issues broke further today in the bond market, while Czechoslovakia loans rallied after an early loss.

The Austrian 7s, which broke 37 points yesterday, were down more than 4 today. Czech government 3s of 51 and 52 were up four days after initial losses of around a point. Prague 7s, however, were off around 4 points. French government 7s were off around 3 points.

U. S. governments generally were 2-3/8 to 5-3/8 higher with a few losses as much as 4-3/8.

A fairly good demand made its appearance for selective rail issues. Utility and industrial loans scored some gains.
